Death threats Terrorized family flees Romulus

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

His job is done. The masked man who has terrorized a young Romulus family with death threats, broken windows and fire bombs for the past two months, can finally take the day off.

"I am not happy. We were run out of our house. I liked my home, but we just can't take it anymore," said an exasperated Janie Herring regarding her traumatic experience. She said she hopes it is now finally over.

Janie, her husband Glen, and their four children, Alisa, 9, Rachel, 4, and seven-month-old twins, David and Amanda, were forced to move this past weekend from the brick house they rented on Huron River Drive in southwest Romulus for the past four years.

"It's really upsetting to be forced out of your home, but we don't want to get in his way. I want to erase this memory," she said.

Since Aug. 19, a husky six-foot white male with "perfectly straight white teeth," and wearing a ski mask has contacted the family 22 times, according to Janie who notified police on each occasion.

"The first time he phoned, he said he was at Jojo's Party Store and asked if Glen's wife was there. He said he knew I was home alone and was coming to get me," she said.

Three days later, he called a second time. "Don't call the cops, he said, or there will be a boom that would be the end," she quoted the man as saying.

Four days after that, he knocked at the back door. "I looked through the window. He was on one side of the door and I was on the other. He told me, he's been watching me and was real close. He laughed and ran out the patio door," she recalled him saying.

Since the harassment began, nine windows in the home and garage were broke, including the large family room picture window shattered by a lawn statue.

"Twice he attempted to start the house on fire. Two pop bottles filled with gasoline were thrown in a crawl space under the house and the next day, the back yard was fire bombed and some bales of hay ignited," she said.

No family member has been injured during any of these incidents.

Everyone is baffled about why anyone would terrorize this family, according to the Romulus police.

"We can find no motive here," said Lt. Ken Kraus. "I can't tell you the number of hours spent on this case. There seems to be some relationship between the parties. There is no other activity in the area and Mrs. Herring is the only person to really have seen him. We will continue to monitor the situation," he said.

"Officers told us their hands were tied," said Herring. "We wanted more police protection. I spoke with the mayor and the police chief. They couldn't do anything. Five times they brought out tracking dogs. We keep hoping they'll do their job. I don't think they have it together. When will they do something, when one of us gets hurt or killed?" she added.

The Herrings were former residents of Southgate. Glen works afternoons at the Cadillac Plant on Clark Street in Detroit and he and his family have attended Liberty Baptist Church in New Boston. "We haven't had any major problems with anybody before," he said.

The owner of the house lives in Florida and the landlord lives in New Boston. The house sits on approximately an acre of land behind Jojo's Party Store.

The pride the Herrings had in their rented home is exhibited in the meticulous landscaping of the outside and the cleanliness of the interior, according to visitors of the Herring family.

Twice the family has hired someone with a tracking dog to watch the house. They eventually purchased a large watch dog of their own.

From Oct. 7 to 20, no incidents occurred and the Herrings felt relieved.

"That's when it started up again. First, he smashed the picture window. Seven days later, he appeared at the bathroom window while I was washing the twins. He told me either the dogs will go or the blonde on bus number seven," said Janie Herring whose daughter is blonde and rides bus number seven to school each morning.

The children were no longer allowed to play outside and the family would not leave the house vacant at night. Friends or relatives have spent the night with the family in recent weeks, the Herrings said.

"We've been run out of our house and I'd like to know why," she concluded.

Millage decided

Less than 30 percent of the registered in Romulus were expected to vote in yesterday's election, according to City Clerk Linda Choate.

Of the 14,000 registered voters in the city, about 5,000 are expected to cast ballots at one of the 19 voting precincts in nine locations throughout the city. Between 500-600 votes were cast by absentee ballot. "A lot more than usual," noted Choate.

Voters in the city, county and across the state have voted for a governor, secretary of state, attorney general, representative in Congress, state senator, state representative, a member on the boards of the different state universities, several judges and state proposals and a new Wayne County Executive.

On the local scene, residents of the city of Romulus have decided the fate of the 1.5 millage renewal for the Romulus School District.

Choate stated that although the ability of citizens to vote has been made easier in recent years, voters are steadily decreasing in numbers. Nor is this the only problem.

"There's an increasingly alarming problem in addition to fewer voters. It's called voter drop-off. Many people don't read the ballot until they're into the voting booth. Then they can't understand it, they don't really know the candidates and they don't vote. Or they can't be bothered. This is becoming a concern of the state and the county," she said.

She is urging all people to vote not only for the main candidates but also for the non-partisan judicial and proposal side of the ballot. "Our court system depends on you," she emphasized.

Each election costs the same amount whether one person votes or all 14,000 registered voters cast ballots, according to Choate. "This election will cost anywhere from $10,000-12,000 with the county and state providing a substantial share. The cost to the city of Romulus is about $8,000. Of that amount, the school district will pay one-third," she said.

City joins 'Son of Super Sewer' project

Members of the Romulus City Council voted to join 14 other local communities in the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley Wastewater Control System or what has been dubbed the "Son of Super Sewer" project.

Only a very small portion in the northwest corner of the city would be affected, according to the council. The area in question is bounded by Hannan, Tyler, Cogswell and Van Buren roads.

"Development in this quadrant of the city would be curtailed because the present system lacks the capacity (for future development). Annual costs to the city should not exceed $6,000. Financial agreements will be considered at a later date," said Mayor Beverly McAnally.

A vote by members of the city council was necessary by Nov. 1 so that participating communities could "take advantage of a 55 percent federal grant that is available for the funding of this project," said David Paul, building department director.

Paul noted the construction and operation of the north arm of the system has been studied for years and finally has been concluded.

The $85-million project would have serviced 16 communities before Canton Township dropped out last month. The Romulus share of this amount would be $81,000, which would be paid over a three-year period. The Canton share would have been $117,000.

The impact of whether the city of Romulus participates has a minimal effect on the project, the mayor said. The decision by the Canton Township board not to participate "may kill the project," said McAnally.

The Department of Natural Resources imposed a ban on new public sewer construction in Canton last month until the township can "solve its sanitary sewer problems."

"If Canton withdraws, all development to the north would be dead. We don't want to be the community that kills the project.

"We want the potential to develop that northwest corner. Either way we're in pretty good shape," McAnally said.

Arson mars Halloween week

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Arson fires or any other problems related to the Halloween season were drastically reduced this year, according to Police Chief Charles Wilmoth.

"There were only two fires in the city, a dumpster fire and a grass fire. Last year, there were 17 fires. People in Romulus are to be commended. We found no bad candy and observed no other major problems. Wilmoth added that no additional curfew was initiated but extra police cars patrolled the neighborhoods.

However, at 1 a.m. on Wednesday morning, the day before Devil's Night a arson fire occurred at Fred's Party Store on Huron River Drive, east of I-275.

"The State Fire Investigative Committee has determined the fire as arson," said Lieutenant Ken Kraus. "The structure was not damaged but the stock was totalled. The value of the damage has not yet been estimated and the fire will be investigated further. There were no injuries."

McAnally calls drug 'summit'

"Everyone in the community with the ability to effect some kind of change" has been invited by Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally to meet at the city hall at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 14 to participate in the war against drugs.

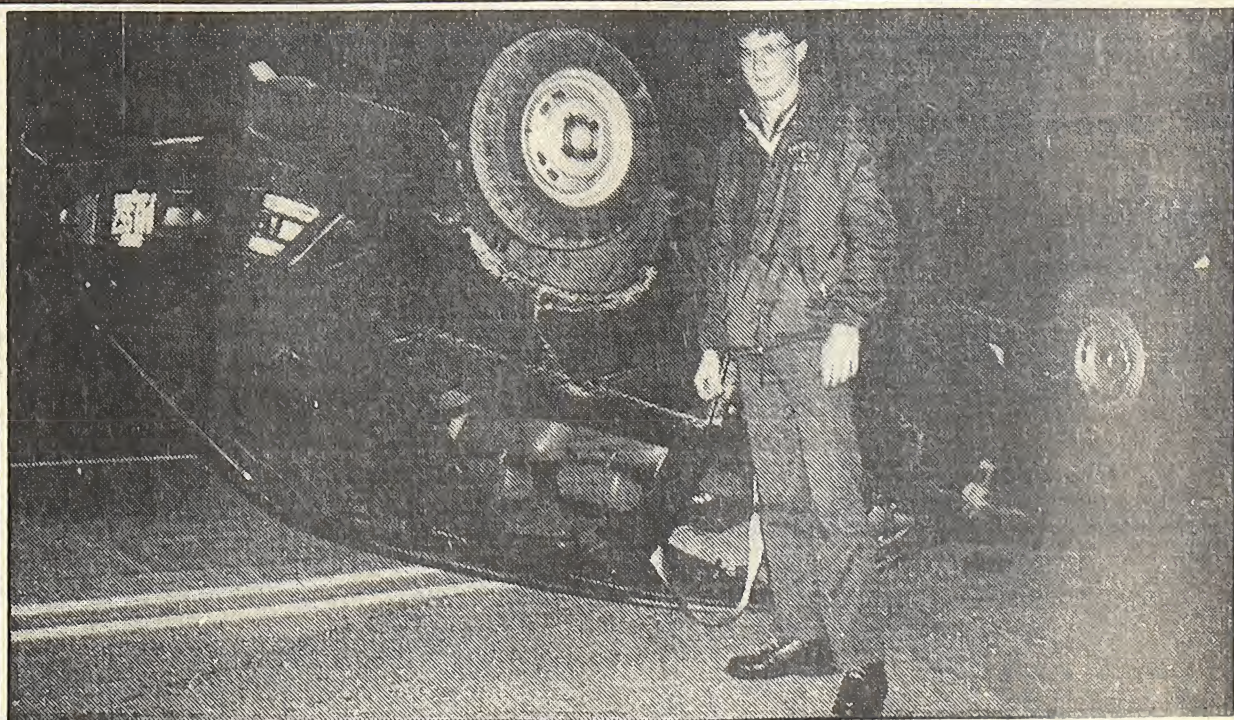

"Of all the perils and disasters that threaten our society, the most serious and immediate is the presence of illegal drugs," she said.

McAnally's gathering, dubbed the "Mayor's Summit Meeting," coincides with a day of drug awareness initiated by the U.S. Conference of Mayors across the nation.

"We need to take stronger steps to eliminate the demand and availability of drugs. The proliferation of drug sales and its use are not only additive to the user but lucrative to the supplier. We as a society are faced with a war that must be fought on many fronts.

"I believe this to be a most important 'Summit Meeting' and that the problem we are addressing is the most destructive our society faces," she concluded.

An upsetting situation

"I'm upset and a bit shaken, but I'm alright," said Don Petre, 19 of Westland, minutes after he was sideswiped by another car on Merriman Road, south of Wick. Romulus police officers, Mike Giroux and Jeff Keefer arrived on the scene immediately. No one was injured. "Wearing a seatbelt saved my life. I just bought this car. It had less than 3,000 miles and I just made the third payment," he said of his 1986 Ford Escort. ANP photo by Bob Denys

Cecelia Renke loved community

When something needed to be done, Cecelia Renke of Romulus took it upon herself to do it. During the 85 years of her productive life, she had few idle moments last month. She died on Oct. 13.

Her contributions to the city of Romulus, the community, schools and church, are destined to outlive live her, according to those who knew her.

At one time she was a member of the Romulus Parent Teacher Association, Women's Relief Corps, American Red Cross Women's Canteen, Romulus Progressive Club, Romulus Gregorian Club, Romulus Senior Citizens, Wayne Senior Citizens, Romulus Historical Society, 4-H Club, St. Aloysius Church and a 30-year member of the Pedro Club.

Although she touched many lives with her kindness, charity, warm smile and sharp sense of humor, her absence will certainly have the greatest impact on her husband of almost 61 years, Philip Renke, their five children, 14 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Members of the Romulus City Council said in an official resolution, "Cecelia Renke will be fondly remembered for her tireless work on behalf of her church and community; a respected and revered citizen."

"She was good woman and that goes a long way," emphasized her 87 year-old husband, Philip. "Everything was special about her. I can't remember when I met her. I was just born knowing her," he stated.

"She had a sense of pride and loyalty about her community," noted one family member.

The former Cecelia Schoenrock was born on Jan. 16, 1901, in Detroit, but was raised with her sister and two brothers on a farm in Romulus.

Renke was growing up in Sumpter Township at this time. Neither he nor his wife had attended high school. They met during their teen years and on Nov. 21, 1925, they were married at St. Stephen's in New Boston.

"Any difficulty we encountered between us was settled before the end of the day," he added. She was a homemaker and later, during World War II, worked on the line at the Willow Run Bomber Plant. In 1966, she retired from her cashier job at Romulus High School after 12 years of service.

During the 1940s, the couple owned and operated Renke Bar, now called Five Points Bar.

Cecelia Renke

"I let her do what she wanted. She had a mind of her own and a good one," Renke stated.

The couple lived a simple life. They played cards, saw movies and Sunday was their day to read the paper, according to their children. They raised their own children next door to the home where Cecelia was raised. The family grew their most of their own food, churned butter and always raised cows and pigs. "We were pretty much self-sufficient," noted one daughter.

"She loved flowers, gardening and knitting. She shared her appreciation with her granddaughters who were all instructed how to knit and crochet," said her daughter.

During their long marriage the Renkes travelled and had visited all but two states. Cecelia liked to play bingo.

"She worked hard and played hard. She enjoyed life. We're all going to miss her. She contributed by her presence," her daughters said.

That's scary

The big party with treats in every room and a haunted house in one was hosted by the student council at Romulus Junior High School. All the third grade students from the public school district were invited and attended. Teachers and students dressed for their part and got into the act. Pictured left is Assistant Principal Dan Hurst sharing a scary story with some Halecreek students. Seventh grader, Angela Garbinski dressed as a frightful lioness. Excitement, laughter and an old-fashioned good time were the lessons of the day. On the day after Halloween, these young entrepreneurs were selling day old pumpkins for half price. The resolution was passed to encourage the United States Congress to pass immediate legislation banning any weapon not detectable by standard security detection devices.

ROMULUS POLICE ARRESTED an East Detroit man for possession of a stolen car after a two-mile chase along I-94 on Sunday night. Timothy Grant, 22, of East Detroit was charged and arraigned in 34th District Court on Tuesday. According to Lt. Ken Kraus, for an undisclosed reason, the suspect attracted the attention of the police near Middlebelt and Goddard roads. The suspect entered eastbound I-94 was stopped once. As an officer exited the patrol car, the suspect sped off. When he approached Ecorse Road a second patrol car was positioned and together the two patrol cars persuaded the stolen vehicle to pull over and then apprehended the suspect. Suspected narcotics were found. Neither police car was damaged.

The first time she appeared in class, one could see how hard a life she had lived. It was written all over her face – the messy hair, the suggestive walk, the sideways glance at the males in the room. She was confident, yet there was a little bit of shyness there that made the masculine students behave like jerks.

The entire class seemed to “perform” just for her. Until she walked into the room, the back door was stared at like a bomb was going to go off.

dan morris

Everyone waited for her. The students who were usually quite polished and capable stumbled over their feet. Those who were not too coordinated in the first place were even more clumsy.

She had come from a good background - her last name attested to that. So what had happened to cause a good girl to go wrong? Whose mistake was it? How did she end up running away from home at such a young age? Who were her friends now? Where was she staying, and who was paying for the education she was getting from our school?

It didn't really surprise anyone when, toward the end of the six-week session, she came to class looking different. Gone was the cheap perfume, the transparently inexpensive baubles she once wore. Gone, too, was the tangled, dirty hair, the long scarlet nails.

The room became silent, almost embarrassingly silent, as she swayed in the door. The difference in her appearance made everyone gasp. She must have found someone to take good care of her. She finally found someone who cared about her and what became of her. Her attitude was still somewhat shy but the shyness created an even more appealing look about her. Her eyes gleamed, and she literally floated across the room to take her place among the other students.

You could smell her perfume. No longer abrasive and strong, the scent drifted around her making the gentlemen weak in the knees. Someone had done their homework. Her hair was combed and smooth, softly flowing from a part atop her head. A delicate pink bow tied a lock out of her eyes. Veronica smiled and heads turned and hearts softened. She'd won everyone over to her side. They understood, finally, that her roaming and getting into bad company was far behind her.

The home she lived in now had discipline, love, tenderness and understanding. It had standards to keep and a good education was one of those standards. That's why she was in class with us. That's why she was now different.

Don't tamper with success

The solution to a problem can be harder to obtain when the problem does not exist.

Council members in the city of Wayne found that fact of life out for themselves Monday when they tried to develop a policy on city hiring procedures, especially for part-time help.

After a citizen in the audience at the council meeting alleged discriminatory practices within the city hiring and firing system, council members set out to solve the "problem" focusing on the part-time employees in the city.

The citizen pointed to census bureau statistics and data obtained from the city personnel department to say that the city was not hiring a number of minority employees proportionate to the number of minorities residing within the city boundaries.

That story only paints half of the picture, however, as the city records show a clear history of equal opportunity employment in all city positions. An affirmative-action plan has been in place in Wayne for a number of years, and discrimination has never legally been an issue for the city fathers.

But, the allegations made by the member of the audience are not the points in question here. Council members were correct in allowing the resident to make his claim, as they were in showing a clear-cut defense of it.

The council members were also on track when they asked this same resident to return to the body when he had obtained viable, legal evidence of discrimination within the city hiring practices as the citizen's claims did not clearly show all sides of the issue at hand.

But a few of the council members missed the boat when they asked that a new policy be written to include all part-time employees hired by the city. Currently, part-time workers are hired by city department heads and not by the formal competitive testing procedures used to hire full-time, permanent staffing.

The city administration told the council that no past record of any problem with the city part-time help had been recorded. One of the city department heads pointed to the very short stays by part-timers and told the council members that the a formal drawn-out testing procedure could be cumbersome, costly and time-consuming for all people involved.

Nevertheless, some council members did not listen. One member of the council asked the city administration for a detailed report of the part-time employees, a report that would take city workers time to prepare and city taxpayers' money to provide.

The administrators in Wayne – and in all cities – are there to serve a purpose. If these administrators indicate that there is no problem with a particular issue and past record supports that claim, then these administrators should be trusted and their value judgments held in esteem.

If a problem with the part-time hiring procedures arises from a part-time employee, a citizen or anyone else who has a valid claim to make, then a review of this policy would be appropriate.

But to haphazardly call for costly reviews without any supportive reason to justify those moves proves to be only frivolous spending, poor time management and clear evidence of a lack of faith in your subordinates.

We will miss two good friends

The entire area will lose two friends next month, friends who have given us the availability of the siviler screen for many, many years.

Those friends are Charles and Martin Shafer, owners of the State and Quo Vadis theaters which will be turned over next month to a national theater corporation. The Shafers have maintained a long history of patronage to the community, and their name has been appropriately associated with the founding of the theater business in the Wayne-Westland area. This founding brought primary notoriety and status to the area, an area which was otherwise just a beginning community.

shadowed the independent entrepreneur. But even such a demise of their family namesake after almost 50 years in the business hasn't scorched the genuine optimistic spirit of these two men nor their feeling of pride in their accomplishments as they take the transition in stride and move on in their own lives.

Charles and Martin Shafer – and their parents, Charles Sr. and Lillian – will be long remembered as the czars of the local theater business and the influence which brought the Detroit city dwellers out west to the suburbs of western Wayne County. Their theaters may no longer give a hint of local ownership, and possibly even the Shafer name will be mentioned less frequently.

But, somehow, some way, what this family has contributed to the local area, what they have accomplished and what they have proven can be done in the business world will never truly fade away. No, instead, their heritage and memories will remain rooted in the foundations of each one of the theaters as symbols of a family of great contributors, contributors which have played a key role in the success of each of our currently-growing communities.

Shades of reality

What is the opposite of reality? Non-reality? Fantasy? It is a hard lesson for most to sort out this matter of reality. When we are children, we tend to create our own reality, and adults think it is cute, no doubt.

Comes the day, however, when it is time to put away childish things. It is no longer cute nor appropriate to live in a make-believe world in which, "someday I'll win the lottery," "someday the perfect life mate will come into my life," "someday the world will discover how wonderful I am and then I'll start to work up to my potential".

Some say that "life is hard. . . and then you die." Some say life is "wonderful." Some say life is what you make it.

The truth is that life is given to us more or less in equal measure, a day at a time, from one breath to the next. Those of us who were blessed with an American heritage have the opportunity to enjoy the most bountiful life that mankind has ever known.

There are realities that we cannot change or escape, then there are realities that we can and do tailor to our own purpose.

Spring follows winter, night follows day. Such facts are beyond our ability to control or influence. But other realities are more subjective. "The glass is half empty," "He's a wonderful guy," "You're wrong, and I'm right" more than likely are simply our reality.

ple – between those who see reality as being problems everywhere versus those who see it as an opportunity in every "situation."

I am equally aghast by those who seem to miss reality altogether and repeatedly mistake the train coming at them through the tunnel, as a light at the other end. I guess our reality is to a degree affected by judgment and experience, or perhaps by having had the experience of doing it wrong and yet surviving.

What I suggest to you here, good friends, is that we first accept those things that we cannot change, and then endeavor to alter for the benefit of ourselves and those we care about those things we can control and change. Nothing really new, or original.

Yet it is not to be left there. I agonize as I watch people I have a regard for, who work hard at kidding themselves in areas of life too serious to kid around with.

Why would anyone ignore reality by mentally standing on the train platform every day for a week waiting for a train that he knows is not coming? Why do people waste their lives failing to choose a direction and set out upon a selected course because they believe someone else did them wrong, or didn't give them the help they should have or could have. It is not enough to have someone else to blame your failures on, in the end only you will answer for your performance, or the lack of it.

If, as the experts suggest, in our reality we filter out those salient points that do not match up with our preconceived notions, then perhaps we must "fess up" to the fact that we have sifted out the bits and pieces of our existence that might point the finger at the mirror instead of out the window. No one likes to admit failure, but let's face it, we all "screw things up" some of the time.

Life is not a winner-take-all proposition. It

Then if we are, at least to a degree, in control of our reality, perhaps we need to consider what our particular persuasion is.

Experts tell us that we are selective and that we filter out those details that do not fit our motives, goals, or desires. If our football team gets beat by another, then perhaps "they" were just lucky. If "our" team is victorious over "theirs," then "we won because we have a better team and played a superior game." A somewhat distorted reality, but it is our own.

I am always amazed by the difference in peo-

Belleville City Council blasted

To the Editor:

I would appreciate your publishing my letter in response to your editorial appearing Oct. 15, 1986, Time After Time.

I commend you on your editorial regarding this matter between the city clerk and the city of Belleville Council.

The people of our city have received a grave injustice in the acts of elected officials having never acquainted themselves with the city charter, city policy and Roberts' Rules of Order. This council has sat for approximately one year.

If you, a resident, have never been on the receiving end of the council's lack of knowledge to execute their elected position, you may not be aware of the mishandlings of your city government.

As an elected official, you are considered to be a person of knowledge, ability and with respect. It is your responsibility in accepting that position, to cause yourself to be aware of the laws and procedures set forth by the state, county and city. To plunder through your position without knowledge of your responsibilities is no excuse for error.

The city of Belleville has afforded itself the services of an administrator and clerk. These people have an obligation to council to maintain proper procedure and to avail their knowledge upon council. The city clerk has and continues to perform her duties far and beyond the requirements of her position.

To claim ignorance of the law is no excuse. Council body consists of one who had firsthand knowledge of the city charter and Roberts' Rules of Order. Therefore, I feel they had ample opportunity and expert advice if they so chose to use it.

One must ask themselves if their time has been spent for the betterment of the community.

Inkster Fire Department 'inadequate'

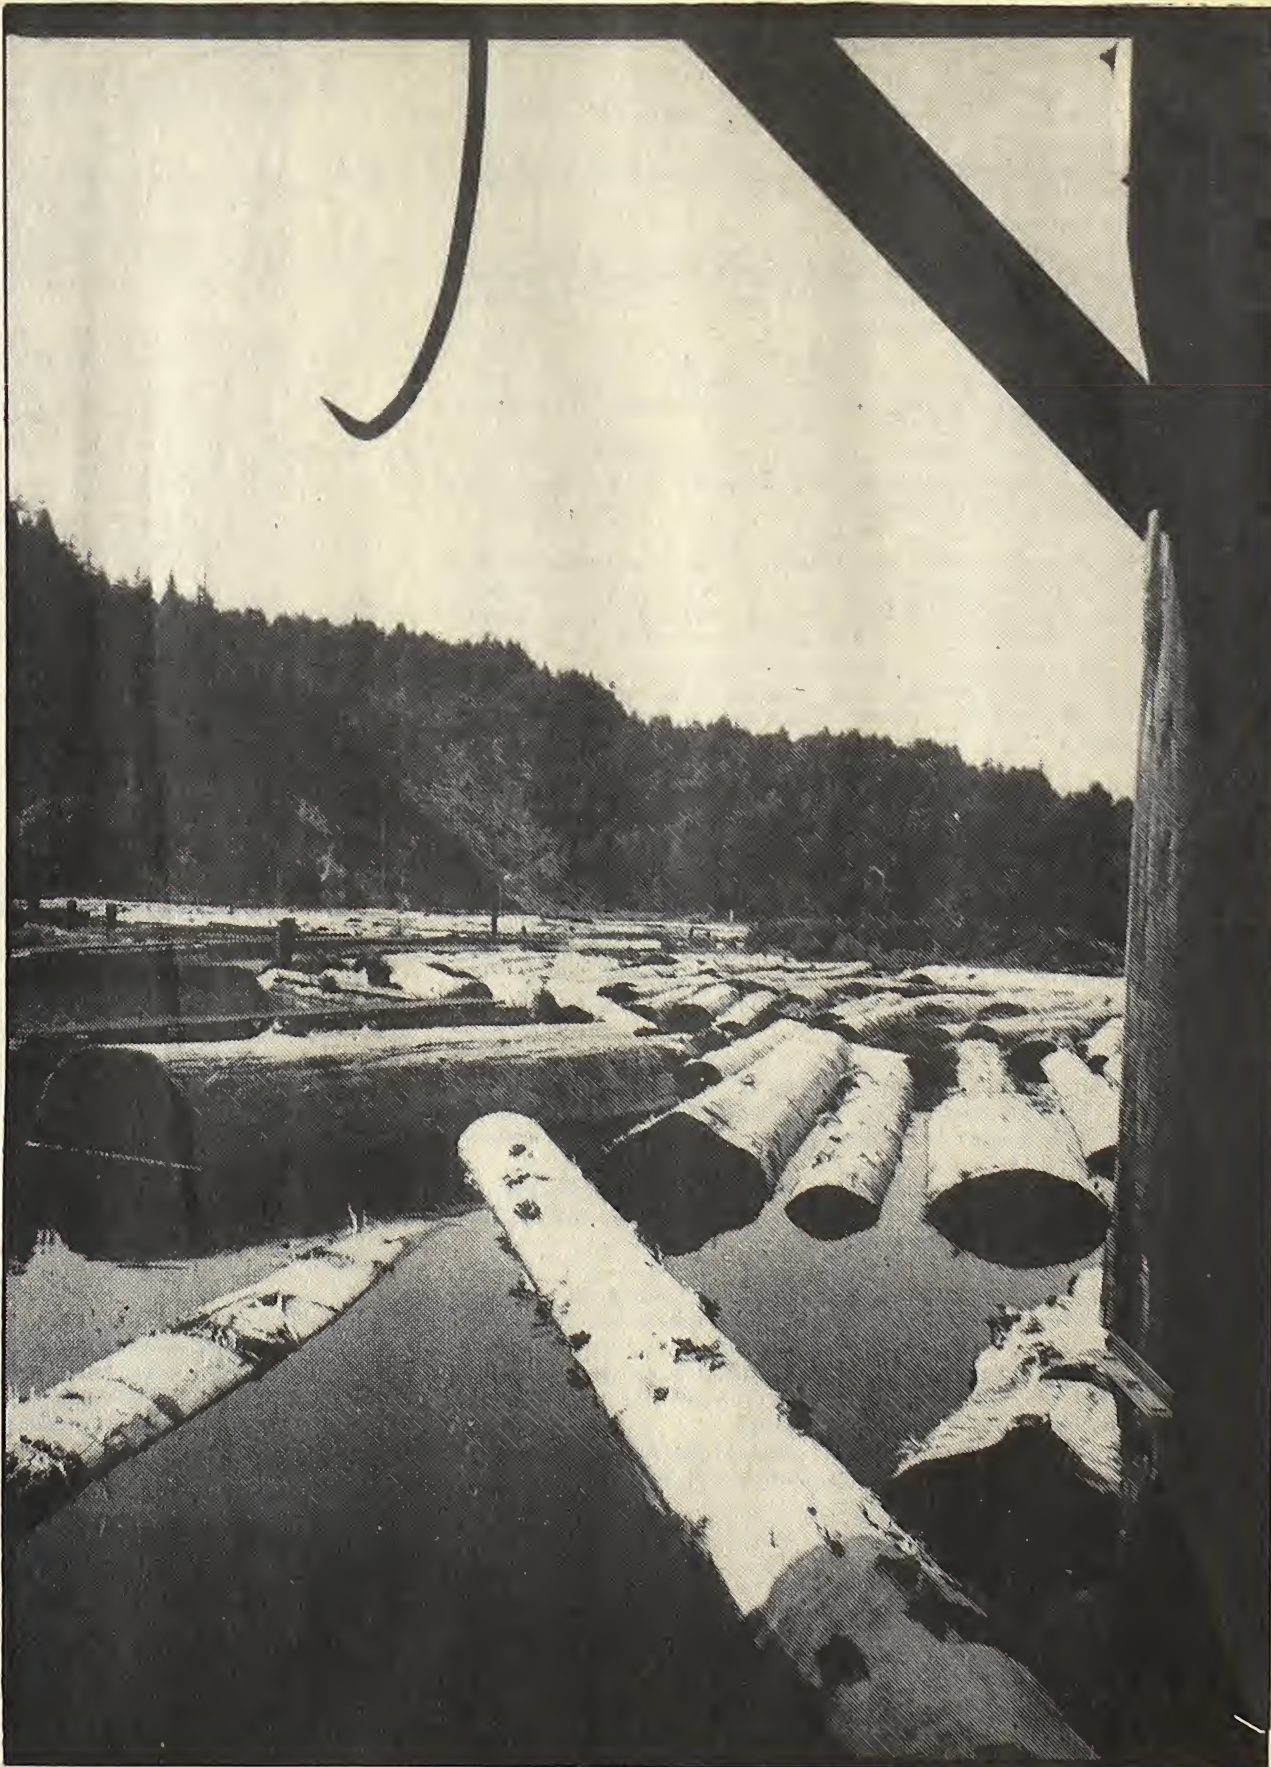

To The Editor:

The city of Inkster, for strictly budgetary reasons, is attempting to cut manpower in the fire department. The percentage of budget used for fire department operations is already the lowest of any city in this area with a full-time fire department.

A recent study, commissioned by the city, shows that we are the busiest department with the fewest men at the lowest isn't a matter of coming in first in the race now or go down in flames later.

Life instead is a batting average - you win some, you lose some. And if your success numbers are not what you want them to be, then you assess your strengths and weaknesses as realistically as your psyche will allow. . . and go at it again. Only this time with greater determination, and a belief that success is not only possible. . . but probable.

One of the few things I remember about my grandmother Willett was her drilling into me one of her most basic philosophies of life, "If at first you don't succeed. . . try, try again."

It has been said by many in any number of different and colorful ways, but it is one of life's great truths, that in the end nothing will take the place of perseverance, and that is reality.

See you next week.

cost per capita of any fire department in this area. Previous studies have always recommended adding men - not cutting.

Each year our run total increases. This year our 18-man department will respond to approximately 2,900-3,000 fires and rescue runs. We have less men now than we did 10 years ago, when we had half as many runs.

New equipment does not put out fires - experienced, capable, dedicated firefighters do. We are now so short-handed that a two-man response to a fire is not unusual.

A fire must be controlled in its earliest stages to minimize the dangers to life and property. For this reason, initial response to a fire is critical. One man operating the engine and one man fighting the fire and searching for victims are not adequate responses.

The city must not be allowed to cut its professional firefighting force to a point of inadequacy. We are almost at that point now. Any further cuts will severely restrict our ability to operate safely and effectively.

The city should also not rely as heavily on other cities for mutual aid as they have in the past. The Garden City, Westland and Dearborn Heights fire departments have come into Inkster more than 50 times this year to assist us. These cities have obligations to their own citizens first, and must not be counted on to respond whenever needed.

Part-time auxiliary personnel who have other jobs should not be counted on to provide this additional manpower. They do not have the dedication and professionalism needed to perform satisfactorily in a very difficult and taxing job.

The citizens of Inkster need and deserve a quality fire department dedicated to providing them with the best possible protection. This cannot be done by cutting manpower.

Belleville Clerk's job is lauded

To The Editor:

I am writing you to express my concern over what appears to be ill-informed or possibly malpractice government in Belleville. I tend to put faith in the charges made by City Clerk Frisch for several reasons, primarily because of my past experiences with Mrs. Frisch when I was in city government. During that time I can recall occasions when the mayor and council, at Mrs. Frisch's guidance, took special efforts to comply with the Open Meetings Act before any such meetings were conducted.

Key responsibilities of Mrs. Frisch's job as city clerk are to uphold the laws of the state and provisions of the city charter. Mrs. Frisch has proven to be a true professional in her position with the city and should she be criticized for doing her job or her position with the city be placed in jeopardy this would truly be an injustice or, moreover, an admission of guilt on the part of the elective administration.

Paramount in accepting the responsibility of elective government is to act in the best interest of the community you serve in a fair and impartial manner and to perform those duties within the state laws and charter that govern the administration of the city which dictates that the government operate in a public and open manner and that each citizen has an opportunity to be heard on all matters relating to the city.

This is a very serious matter, and it is important to every citizen of Belleville to know if the claims made by Mrs. Frisch are true because if they are, the present administration has made a deliberate decision to circumvent the democratic process, and it should be held accountable for its actions.

Many of the Michigan missing children are victims of parental kidnapping, taken to another part of the state by their father or mother, in defiance of a court-ordered custody agreement. This kind of kidnapping has been considered a misdemeanor and not a more serious felony, unless the child was taken out of state. We now have a law that makes any parental kidnapping in Michigan a felony, making it easier for law enforcement agencies to locate and return the kidnapped child. However, the new law also provides an appropriate form of punishment for people who commit this crime with what may be called "good intentions."

Divorcing parents usually honor the court-ordered settlement. But sometimes a parent is desperately dissatisfied, and, despite the court judgment, feels that he or she can provide a better life for the child. So the parent might feel driven to kidnapping. Even if it's done out of desperate love, a parental kidnapping can be just as emotionally damaging to a child as an abduction by a stranger. It can sometimes put the child in real danger, and it causes great mental anguish to the parent who has legal custody of the child.

State and federal laws limit what enforcement agencies can do in misdemeanor cases. By making parental kidnapping a felony, the new law makes it easier for police in Michigan and other states to arrest the kidnapping parent and return the child to the court-ordered home.

But the law recognizes the frustration that might lead a parent to kidnap his or her child. Since the parent is not usually criminally inclined, the law permits the court to suspend the convicted parental kidnapper's sentence on the first offense. If the convicted parent ever attempts to remove the child again, the sentence will be reinstated, and he or she must serve time in jail.

Parental kidnapping can also cause financial hardship to the custodial parent, if they have to hire private detectives or lawyers. A new Michigan law requires that the kidnapping parent must reimburse the custodial parent for any such expenses.

Custody disputes must be resolved in the court, not on the streets. The safety and emotional well being of the child is the major consideration, and the court makes the decision based on careful consideration of the suitability of each of the contesting parents or guardians. It is never good for a child to be illegally removed from his or her home by anyone, even a loving, but misguided parent. The Michigan law recognizes the seriousness of such a kidnapping by making it a felony. The law also recognizes the extraordinary pressures that might drive a law-abiding parent to such a desperate extreme and provides a means of punishment that is fair and effective.

Mall scene changes with local tastes

By CURT JORDET
ANP Staff Writer

Mankind may pity the poor soul who refused to make his voice heard in the general election Tuesday because it "wouldn't make a bit of difference anyway."

But perhaps the pity shown should be directed at mankind itself. For how could the American system of education fail so miserably to convince this person of his worth as a determining factor when all around are obvious examples of the public's influence over the way society eats, sleeps, shops and governs?

Take, for example, the influence Americans have had recently over the way they shop. If that apathetic voter only realized how the spending habits of his fellow man directed the offerings which he was given, he might then be singing a different tune.

"It is the public that decides exactly what is offered to the consumers and what form it is offered in," said Pat Hobar. "From the storefront look all the way down to the product it sells, it is the shopper who eventually determines exactly what we see in front of us."

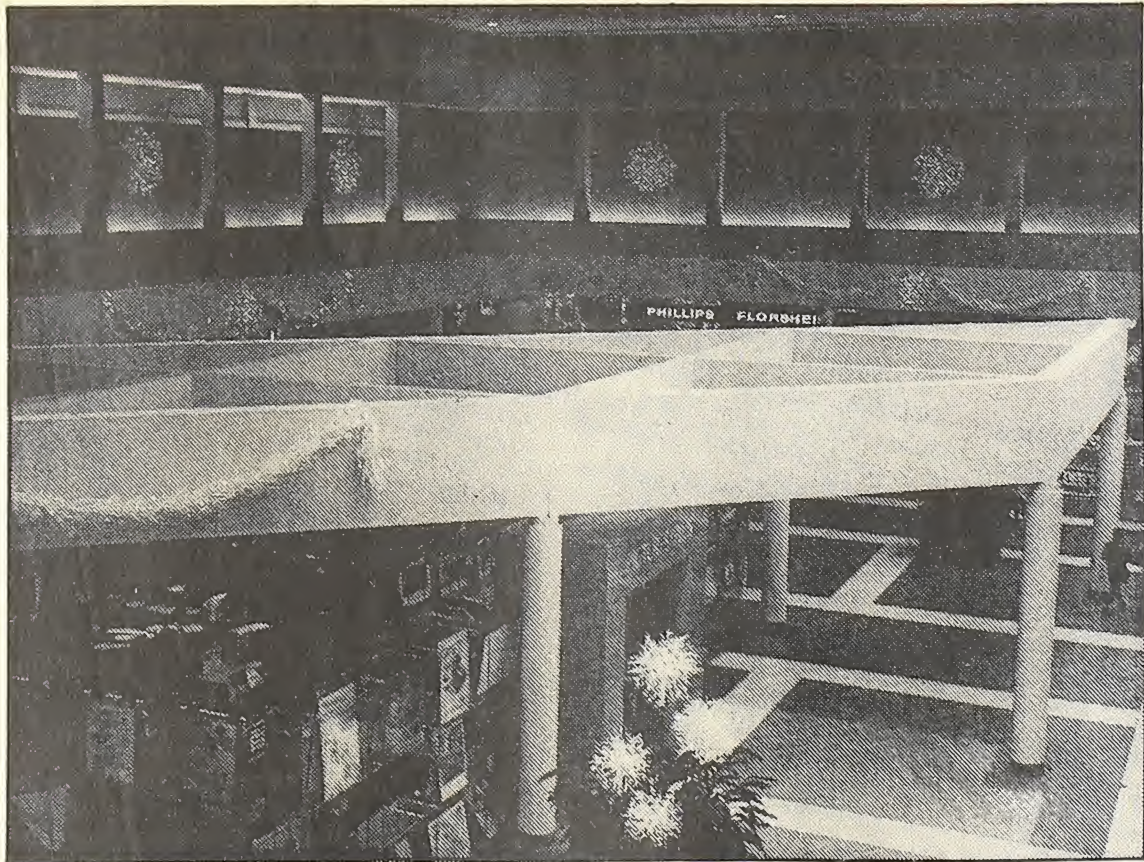

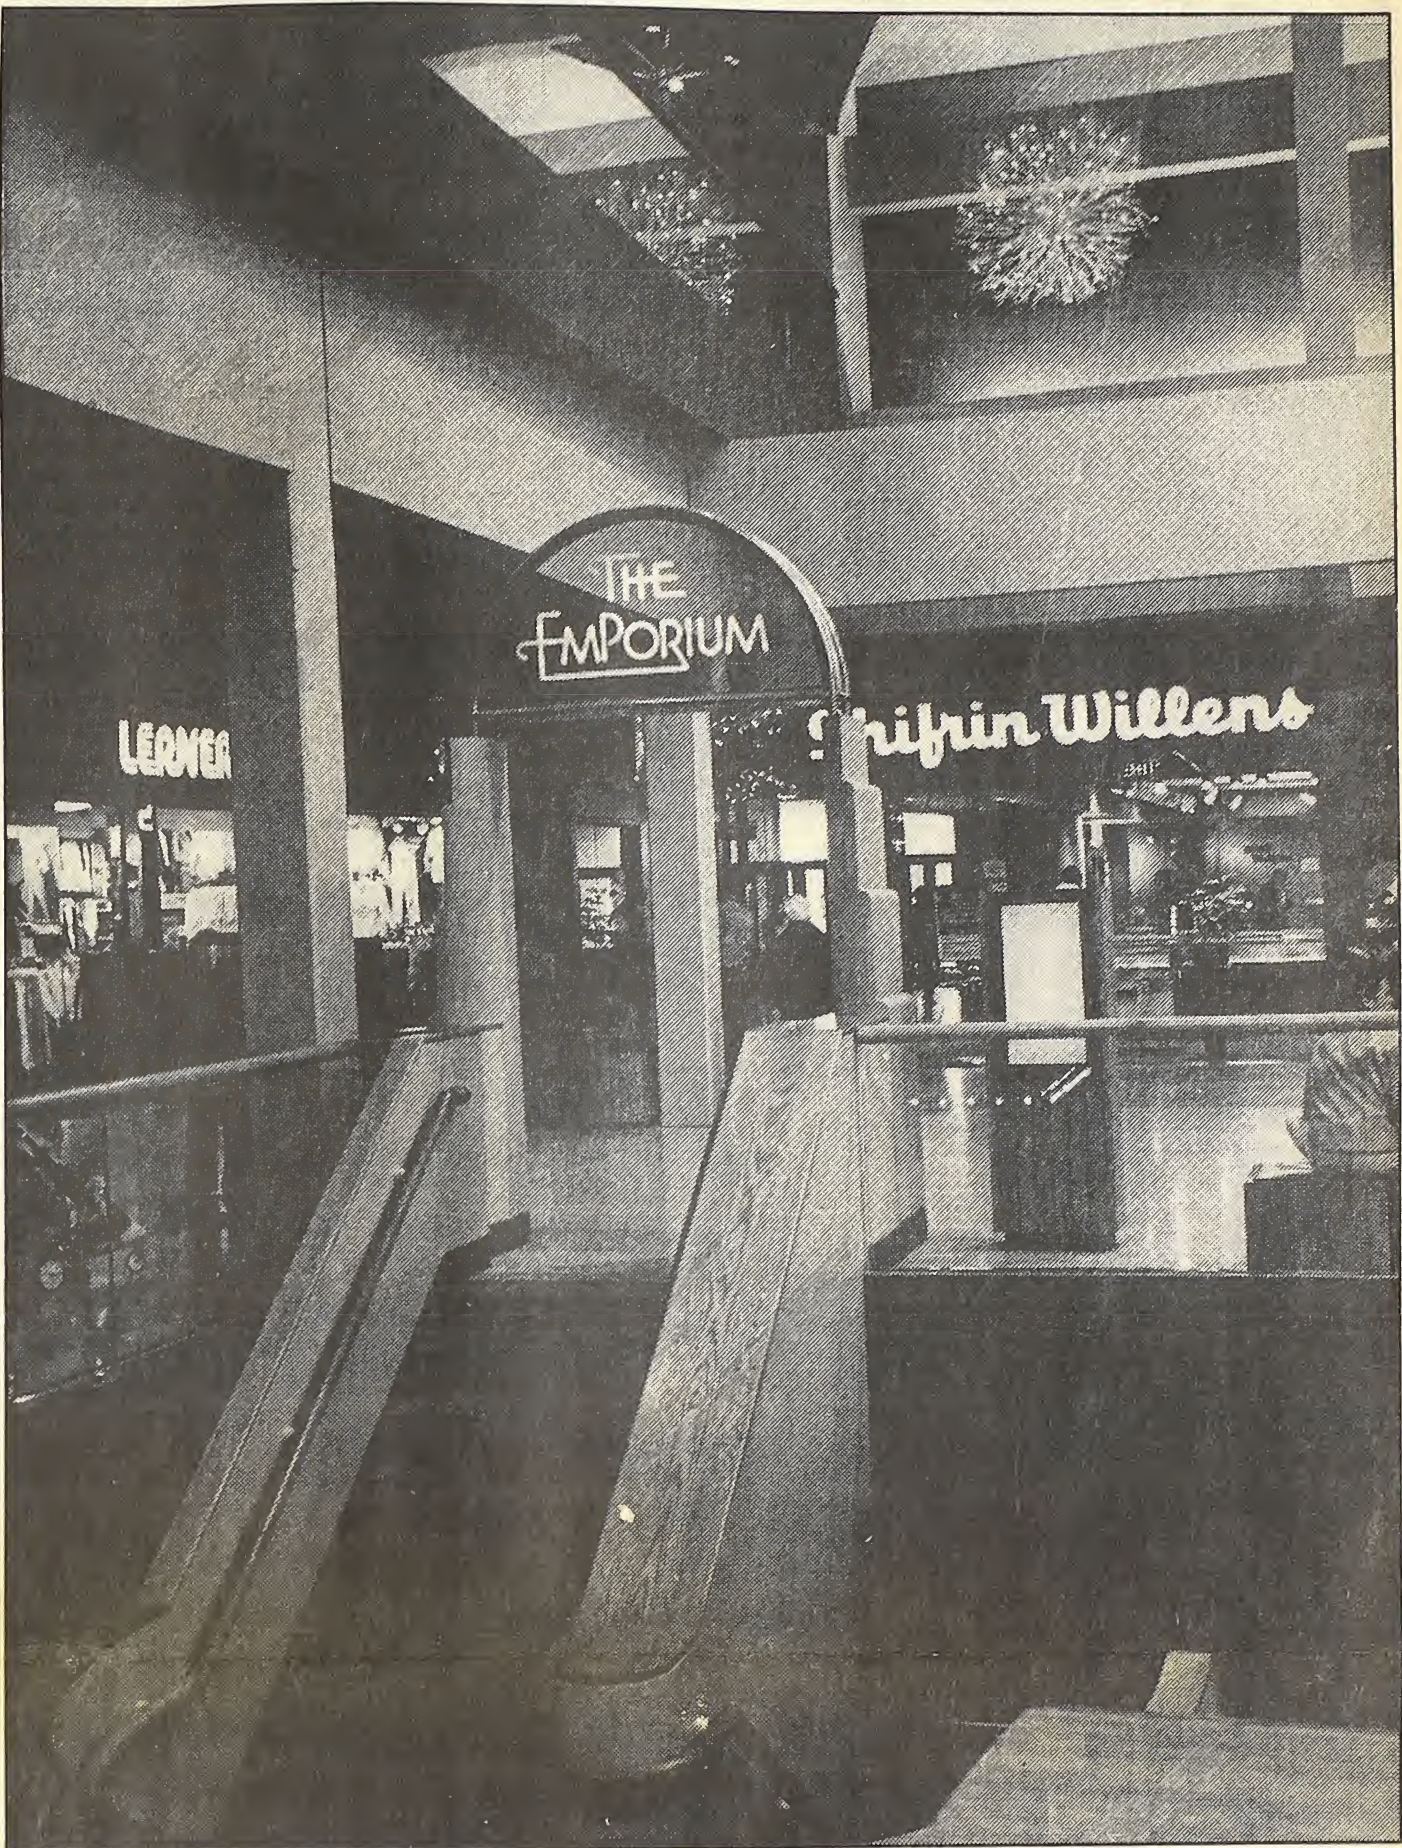

Hobar is no stranger to the retailing business. As public relations director for Westland Center — one of the larger retailing centers in the state of Michigan and the major shopping attraction in western Wayne County — Hobar is in charge of promoting and informing the public about ongoing events at the facility.

"About 90" stores currently call the Westland Center home, and each offers a unique attraction to the average shopper. But contrary to popular opinion, Hobar said each store is continually looking for ways to upgrade popularity with the consumer and tries various marketing methods to achieve that end.

The center itself also undergoes a continual change process. "Westland Center first opened in 1965," Hobar explained, "and from the very beginning we have continued to upgrade its appearance."

"We added the JCPenney wing to the center in the early 1970s and four or five

The look of the malls change with the tastes of consumers, as is evident from the look of Westland Center on Wayne and Warren Roads in Westland. The mall has taken on a modern look, designers say, that is both pleasing to the shopper and proper for the times through the use of an all-brass fountain, stucco-painted stairwells and cloud-like ceiling windows.

Some merchants prefer 'going it alone'

By CURT JORDET
ANP Staff Writer

To hear Marvin Kahn speak, one can sense almost immediately a certain unique quality which sets him apart from the others. Whether it is found in his sharp political wit or his keen business sense, Kahn exudes a confidence rarely found in local entrepreneurs today.

And it is the air Kahn possesses which also identifies him as the last of a dying breed in urban America. For Kahn, for 40 years now the owner of Stuart's, a women's apparel shop in the city of Wayne, represents one of the few remaining retailers who have shunned the lure of relocating their businesses in the ever-increasing array of shopping malls.

Spurred on by a nationwide trend to bring all of a shopper's wants under one roof, developers and retailers alike have turned to the mall as a means of accomplishing that goal. Whether through the booming number of strip developments — in which several stores are joined together — or through the growing proliferation of "super" malls, which can house more than 100 retail establishments, store owners have found the mall to be a choice location for attracting clientele.

It is a trend, however, that has forced several cities into a state of near-panic as they scramble to keep carefully-pieced business districts together. As retailers quietly abandon their old locations for the more financially secure mall developments, municipal officials are often faced with the task of resurrecting the heart of their city.

Kahn is one such person who has decided to stay. But the decision, he will admit, was not an easy one to make.

"If I were much younger, I think I would naturally follow the trend and locate in a mall in a growing area," said Kahn after a moment of reflection. "But I'm not that young anymore, and I don't think it would be worth all of that effort to move now if I'm not going to be around that much longer."

Kahn, a former Big Band leader who was once under contract to MCA Records, opened his women's clothing store in Wayne in 1946 after a five-year stint in the military diluted his marketability as a performer.

A lifetime of selling later, Kahn's business continues to gain in popularity, even though many of Kahn's potential clients are now heading to the shopping malls. Kahn quietly admits that he has to work harder than ever to keep his business profitable.

"In order for us to survive nowadays, we have to emphasize the personal service which we give to the customer," he explained. "Most mall stores give very little personal attention to the client."

Marvin Cohn has made a successful business for himself without the mall overhead.

Strip malls dot the area

By CURT JORDET
ANP Staff Writer

It only takes a short drive down Wayne Road in Westland for one to realize exactly what the term "strip mall" is all about. There, stretching for what seems like an eternity, the eyeball can view one small shopping center after another, each neatly packed behind a small parking lot and quietly luring passers-by in for a look. It is an amusing sight to some, alluring to others, and appealing to city officials who reap the benefits of increased revenue in the form of property tax dollars.

It represents American consumerism at its best.

With developers each waiting their turn in line, shopping malls in the 1980s are being churned out almost as rapidly as homes were some 50 years ago. The wave of the future, as dictated by the consumer, has been to locate everything in one area for easy shopping, and land barons are more than eager to offer their property if it will help earn some hard cash.

City officials, too, are eager to develop previously uncathed land within municipal boundaries; in part, because they want to increase the tax base of the city, and in part, because they fear their town will become little more than an empty entrepreneurial sell without one.

With a relatively small amount of space and a little capital, developers today can quickly transform a wooded parcel into a hub of business activity with perhaps a dozen young retailers quietly reaching for your pocketbook. It is an impressive, if not overpowering sight.

Combined with the addition of the "super malls" — enormous shopping complexes which can house more than 100 shops and require vast amounts of land — businessmen today have a wide variety of places to choose from.

But at least one development engineer, who talked to the press on the condition that neither he nor his employer be identified, has begun to wonder if the search for capital gain hasn't progressed a bit too far.

Malls

years ago we remodeled again. Even now we are in the process of adding five new stores to replace the area where Kresge's used to be, and that will give our center court area yet another different look.

Perhaps the most important change taking place at the center, however, will begin later this fall when construction begins on a new portion of the center that will eventually house a major department store.

"You have to always be alert to new trends in retailing," Hobar continued. "Each store generally has people who know the industry, and they respond to changes in public attitude by changing their line of clothing, the products they offer or by even changing the front or interior of the building."

"They do their own advertising, so they know how to adapt to the changing market," Karen Hanchett, Hobar's co-worker, agreed. "Upgrading at the center is an ongoing process," she said. "Everybody here is always looking at ways in which they can improve themselves."

Hanchett pointed out that stores like Elaine Bryant, Foxmoor, Meyer's Jewelry, Winkleman's and Marianne's have all recently undergone exterior renovations to improve the image that is presented to the public. In addition, the attractive lure of the center has prompted several other stores to open up outlets there recently.

Green – Posegay wed

Lori Joan Posegay and Steven Green were united in marriage Sept. 20 at the Church of God in Belleville. The Rev. Paul Leslie officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Posegay of Belleville. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Green, also of Belleville.

Cousins of the bride, Kathy Briggs and Mary JoAnn Posegay, sang a rendition of "the Wedding Song" and "Endless Love" to highlight the wedding ceremony.

The bride, who approached the altar with her father, chose a floor-length white gown with sheer organza and scattered embroidered organza appliques, a flounced hemline and chapel-length train.

Her fitted bodice was trimmed with lace and adorned with seed pearls. She wore a fingertip veil topped with a crown of rhinestone and pearls. Her bouquet featured white roses, carnations, sprays of seed pearls and greenery.

Lynne Posegay served as the maid of honor. Lisa Posegay and Ann Marie Rymut were the bridesmaids for the occasion.

Michael Green was best man with Dave Stoll and Doni Lundell serving as his groomsmen.

The newlyweds greeted more than 300 guests at a reception in the P.N.A. Hall in Belleville. Highlight of the celebration was the three-tiered wedding cake made by Mary Posegay, the bride's aunt.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Steven Green are 1985 graduates of Belleville High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Green

Romak – Parker married

Toby Paula Romak became the bride of Dwayne Parker June 21 at the Northville Gazebo. The Rev. Pete Lockard officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Romak of Romulus and Naple, Fla. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Parker of Romulus.

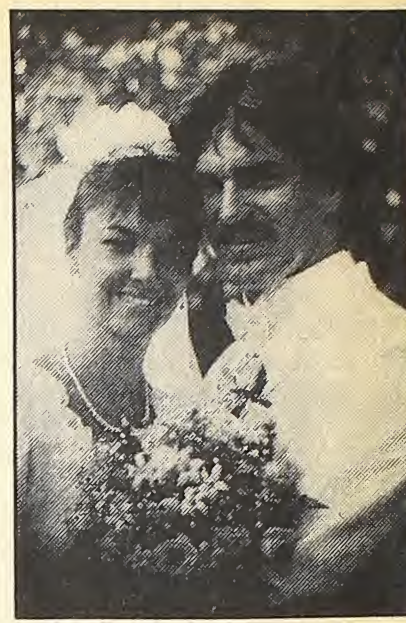

The bride's sister, Tracy Swartz, was maid of honor, while bridal attendants included Donna DeVita, Kathy DeFranco and Lisa Hadyniak.

Michael DeVita was ring bearer, Erin Romak was flower girl, and T.J. Romack carried the bride's train.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Wayne. More than 250 guests attended the celebration.

The couple traveled to Las Vegas for their honeymoon. They have made their new home in New Boston.

Jim Parker was the best man. Ushers were Terry Romak, Todd Wallace and Larry Farrugia.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Parker

Mr. and Mrs. Michael West

West – West united

Cheryl Lynn West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles West of Harroun Street, Wayne, became the bride of Michael West of Grand Blanc on July 26.

The 5 p.m. ceremony at the First Congregational Church in Wayne was conducted by the Rev. Robert Millar. Dr. Kenneth West and Doreen West of Flint are the bridegroom's parents.

Decorations of ferns and greenery accented by white satin bows were featured at the church where the bride was given away by her father.

Cheryl wore a gown adorned with French lace, taffeta and 197 hand-fashioned whisper-pink rosebuds. The v-neckline swooped to the waist in back, beginning a train made of five yards of lace. It was lined with whisper-pink satin and scattered with the rosebuds. The back of the gown was the focal point as guests viewed the silk roses that edged the train.

Cheryl chose a hat accented with the same French lace and rosebuds. Her bouquet consisted of pink and white sweetheart roses and babies' breath.

Amy Whitworth, a close friend of the bride, came from Florida to take part in the ceremony as matron of honor. Liz West, sister of the groom, and Chris Lousies, Nancy Vincent, Judi Hamblin and Lisa McGill, all served their friend as bridesmaids. They carried pink and white nosegays.

Scott Teasdale, cousin of the bride, was the ring bearer. Shannon Cooley appeared as the flower girl.

Kevin Hodges of Grand Blanc acted as best man for the groom while Mark West, brother of the groom, and Sanjay Mundlur, Bill Baldwin, David and Brad West, brothers of the bride, and Todd Teasdale were the ushers. The groom wore a white outfit while the ushers and best man appeared in gray pin-striped tuxedos. They all wore pink boutonnières.

A reception followed the ceremony at Joy Hall with 260 guests in attendance.

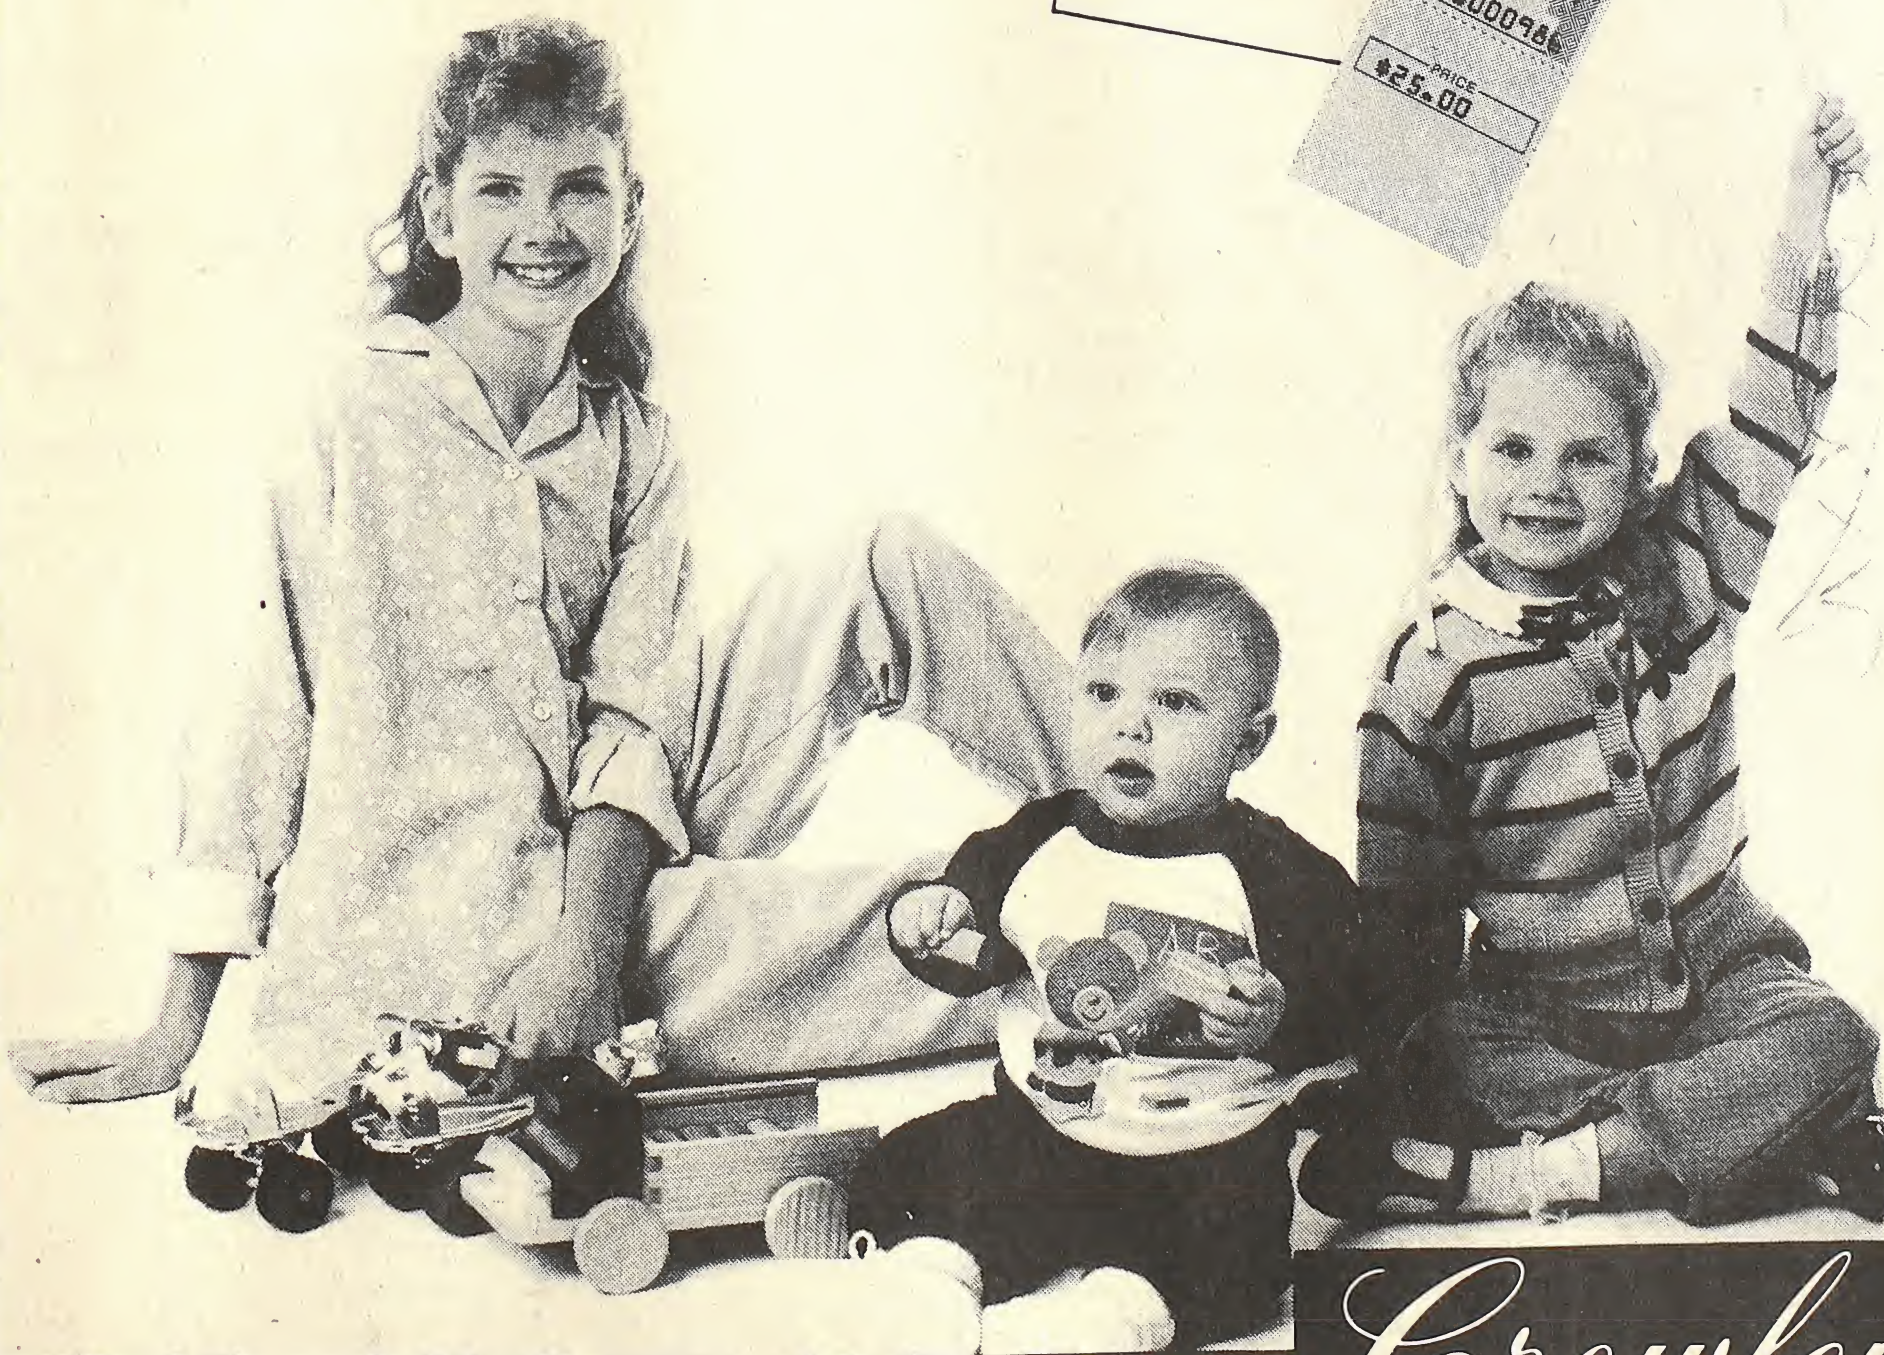

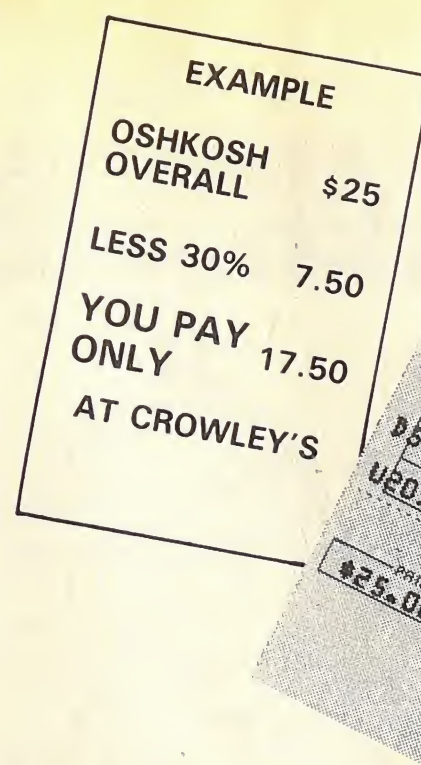

After a wedding trip which included stops in Seattle and Expo '86 at Vancouver, British Columbia, the newlyweds moved to Denver, Colo. Cheryl graduated from WMHS and from Michigan State University with a B.S. degree in nursing. Michael graduated from Grand Blanc High School and from Michigan State University with a degree in psychology. He is working on a doctorate in psychology at the University of Denver.

Before he brought his wife, Ethel, and three children to focus on people

Romulus, he retired from a distinguished military career.

Lovette was born and raised on the family farm in Sylvania, Ga., the oldest of six children.

During his twenties, he returned to finish high school. At 27, he graduated from Georgia State College with a degree in biology and science. In later years, he earned a masters degree in biology from Eastern Michigan University and in school administration from the University of Michigan.

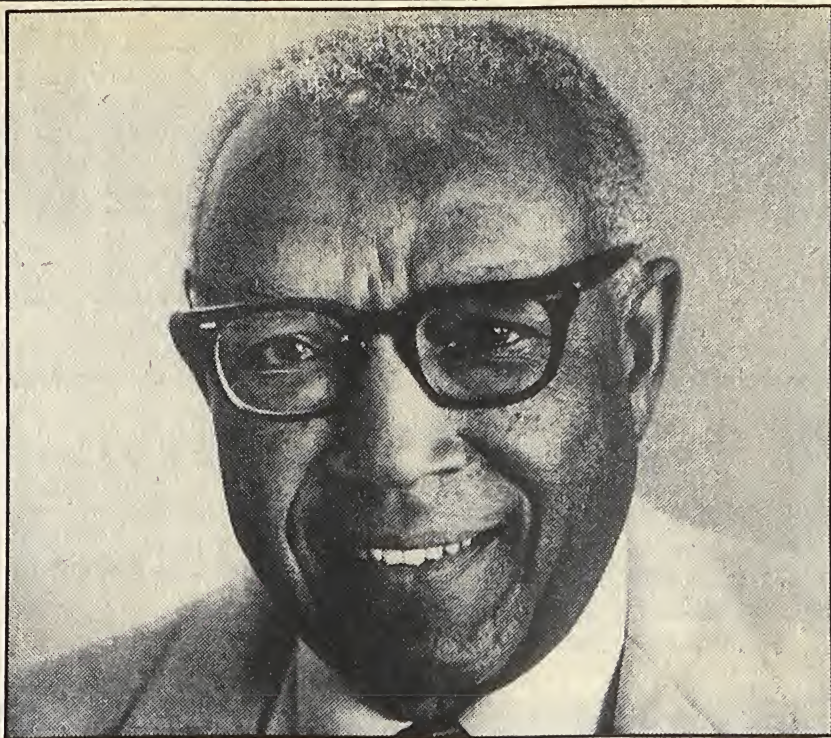

After 20 years in the military, he came home to Romulus and for the next 14 years taught biology, sponsored the student council, chaired the science department and became the first black principal of Ecorse High School, all in the Ecorse school system.

ASSOCIATED NEWSPAPERS: How old were you when you joined the service?

LOVETTE: I didn't join. I was drafted at the age of 27 in 1941. Luckily I had just finished college.

ANP: Why did you decide to stay?

LOVETTE: I had no idea at that time. When World War II was over, civilian life wasn't so rosy and I wasn't satisfied. I had gotten married while in the service. I met Ethel in college when we both worked at a summer resort town in New Jersey. I signed up for three more years. During that time we had the opportunity to live in Paris, France, and Munich, Germany. Our daughter, Phyllis, was born there. My wife enjoyed life in the service and adjusted very well.

ANP: Do you frequently recall your years in the military?

LOVETTE: It's not a phase in your life you want to repeat. It was an experience I'm glad to have had.

Obviously, I started out as a private. Within two months, I was promoted to corporal and in two more months to a buck sergeant. I retired in 1961 in the Army Infantry as a lieutenant colonel.

During my career I was awarded some 15 military decorations and awards including a Purple Heart and Combat Infantryman's Badge with Star. I was awarded the Silver Star in 1950 for service in Korea when I commanded the last troops to be evacuated by sea. Under my command, an overrun of the port was prevented until all troops could be evacuated.

I was the first black officer to command a troop of white men in Korea and the first black to be appointed accountable officer for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, responsible for the issue of all supplies to American troops or allies in NATO.

My youngest son, Kary, was born the day I crossed the international date line when the Army shipped me to Korea. I didn't see him for eight months. My oldest son is Jason Jr.

ANP:How did you get involved in community affairs?

LOVETTE: My family was involved in the community and when my wife and I moved to Romulus where her aunt lived, they were community minded. Romulus has been good to me. We built a 1,860 square foot home here and our children attend local schools.

ANP: Which gubernatorial candidate did you support?

LOVETTE: Blanchard. When Blanchard took office he instituted policies that put his political future on the line. He is largely responsible for the economic recovery of the state and deserves a second chance.

Lucas is a good man but I'm not going to vote for someone because he is black, white, Democratic or Republican.

Endless summer

Islands beckon to tourists

By JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Staff Writer

Visitors from the Virgin Islands spoke enthusiastically about the pleasant Michigan weather when they visited Westland Center last weekend, but added that they weren't used to "putting on so many layers of clothing" at home in their mid-80s temperatures.

Late fall in western Wayne County can be a beautiful time of the year, they noted, but it also means the long, dark, dreary days of winter are just around the corner. And, that is the reason Fay Lindqvist, district manager of the Division of Tourism for the U.S. Virgin Islands, was visiting the midwest.

are among the items available duty-free for shoppers.

"Our biggest attractions, of course, are the crystal-clear water, sandy beaches, sunshine and a temperature that averages 85 degrees and is kept pleasant by the ocean breezes," Lindqvist added.

Willard Jones boasted of the water sports on the islands, noting, "There's sailing, wind surfing and scuba diving in the clear waters."

Excursions to Buck Island provide visitors with the unique opportunity to take and underwater trail that has been designated as a national park and view some seven varieties of coral plus many species of sea life.

The Virgin Island, Lindqvist said, have become more popular with travelers in the past few years because it is under the American flag and provides the safety and protection for tourists that may not exist in other areas.

"Duty free shopping is one of the big attractions to the Virgin Island with many European imports available," she said. "Crystal, liquor and cigarettes

"Come and enjoy the island," Lindqvist told the Michiganders. "We're friendly and we enjoy visitors."

Her hope is that many of the people she has met in Westland will spend their winter vacations in St. Croix. And, her second hope is that her schedule will permit her to spend the winter with them in the land of sandy beaches and crystal waters.

Glenn shuts out Wayne for city title, meets Ypsi in regional match-up

By KEITH A. DE MOLAY
ANP Special Writer

Terry Johnson would have been proud.

Last Friday night, a huge crowd at Westland John Glenn's Kionka Field paid homage to the late former Glenn captain and outstanding athlete, then the Westlanders parlayed a tough defense into a 17-0 victory over cross-town rival, Wayne Memorial.

Johnson, a former all-around athlete at Glenn in the early 1970's, died recently of an apparent heart attack at the age of 26.

The victory, dedicated to Johnson, was Glenn's eight in nine games this year and extended its monopoly over the City Championship crown for the sixth consecutive year.

The triumph also propelled the Rockets into the state Class A playoffs for the second consecutive year.

"It was a hard-fought victory," said Glenn head coach Chuck Gordon, who has taken his last two clubs to the playoffs. "We're excited to win the city title as well as play in the post-season playoffs."

For the Wayne Zebras, the loss dropped their record to 5-4 on the season and ended a successful season for Coach Chuck Howton and his squad.

"They (Glenn) took advantage of our mistakes, and they scored. They are a fine team and played very well when they needed to. We wish them the best of luck in the playoffs," Howton concluded.

Glenn will take on Ypsilanti in a Saturday afternoon contest in the pre-regional game at

John Glenn will take on Ypsilanti at 1:30 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 8 in a Class A pre-regional playoff game. It is the second consecutive year that Coach Chuck Gordon and his Rockets are making post-season playoff appearances.

1:30 p.m. at Glenn's own Kionka Field. The winner will advance to the semi-finals.

Glenn's defense was the key to victory over their arch-rival. The Rockets started the game the same way they have played all season. Zebra quarterback Doug Quartuccio forced his first pass into coverage and threw out-of-bounds, then tailback Daren Tatum was stuffed at the line of scrimmage. Another incomplete pass brought up fourth down and out came Steve Warner to punt.

But, the snap was high and sailed over Warner's head. As the entire Glenn line began the chase for the loose pigskin, Warner picked it up and tried to punt it out of the end zone.

However, Chris Scheffer blocked the futile punt and fell on the ball for a Rocket touchdown.

Tony Svaluto added the point-after and Glenn led, 7-0.

"The touchdown was a tremendous emotional lift for our team," Gordon said. "Looking back, it was one of the key plays of the game."

For Wayne, it was a hold from which they never recovered.

"The snap over his head was a nightmare come true," Howton said. "It was the first time that had happened all year. But the adrenalin was flowing. The kids didn't lose their poise or composure. We played a great second half."

Tatum tried to get Wayne going but could only pick up seven yards. Linebacker Kurt Kuban, the Rockets first second-generation player, stuffed Tatum on third down and forced Wayne to punt. This time, lightning did not strike twice, and Glenn had to start from near midfield.

But Ken Jones, starting at fullback, surprised Wayne with a nine-yard burst up the middle, then Paul Beasley garnered 11 more for the first down. After three more short runs, Steve Hawley was sacked for a three-yard loss.

Jones gained 11 yards on the next play but was short of the first down. Out came Svaluto and holder Greg Bates for a 40-yard field goal attempt. The 6-1 senior booted it through the uprights and Glenn led, 10-0.

However, Wayne didn't come here to lose. Quartuccio opened the Zebras' next series with a seven-yard pass to Tom Bishop, then Tatum picked up a first down on an 18-yard run. Wayne began mixing their plays as well, using Tatum and Ken Dropiewski for short gains.

Change of strategy?

The pieces just weren't falling into place for Wayne Memorial Friday night and the Zebras got into a deep hole early against their natural rivals, Westland John Glenn. The Westlanders turned a blocked punt into their first score and eventually won a 17-0 decision to end the regular season with a 8-1 record and qualify for the state playoffs for the second consecutive year. Ball bounces to Belleville at expense of Romulus

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The ball finally took a Belleville bounce as Coach Dave McCarney and the Tigers brought the curtains down on the 1986 football season Saturday with a 24-12 victory over neighboring Romulus.

"We took advantage of the opportunities that came our way and combined them with a gusty overall performance," said McCarney who finished his inaugural year as head coach with a 2-7 record.

Romulus had to settle for a 3-6 mark.

Using a first quarter turnover to their advantage, Belleville got on the scoreboard in the first quarter thanks to a 22-yard field goal by Blaine Armstrong. The 3-pointer was set up by Chico Crout's interception of a Dave Blandford pass. Blandford got the call at the starting quarterback job when veteran Luther Shannon sustained a hand injury during practice earlier in the week.

Coach Norb Glover's Eagles didn't waste any time erasing the deficit as they came right back with a touchdown to take the lead at 6-2. With Blandford at the throttle, Romulus put together a nine-play drive that covered 60 yards, the final 12 featured a perfect strike from

We took advantage of all the opportunities that came our way in this game.
– Dave McCarney, Belleville coach

the Eagle QB to tight end Michael Ross.

Though Belleville stopped the two-point conversion, they were now looking up at the Eagles, 6-3.

But not for long.

Again, with a little help from a Romulus defender, Belleville quarterback Steve Ostrowski teamed up with split end Jim Hicks on a 58-yard touchdown pass. Hicks got the ball via a deflection by an Eagle safety, but he didn't pause to thank the player and raced into the end zone to put the hosts up 9-6. The conversion failed.

Before the half ended, Belleville was on the scoreboard again. After Bill Sparrow recovered another Romulus turnover - the Eagles had three big ones in that first half - Armstrong booted a 30-yard field goal with only 30 seconds to spare before the intermission.

What apparently took the wind from the Eagles' wing was a stunning 87-yard touchdown pass that went something like this: Blandford to halfback Jason Williams (who appeared to be doing most of the passing for the Eagles on this particular Saturday afternoon) to Michael Ross. The touchdown, unfortunately, for Romulus was nullified because of a penalty.

"That was the turning point in the game for us," Glover

16 turnovers
Robichaud is buried in own mistakes

Sixteen turnovers in the final two games of the season may be a recent record for Robichaud football, but Coach Bob Yauck isn't looking back but forward to next year.

"Sure it was a disappointing season for us," said Yauck after Muskegon Heights buried the Bulldogs 37-18 Friday. "We had high expectations for this team, however, it just didn't happen this year."

Yauck said a series of injuries forced him and his staff to rebuild at mid-season. The major overhaul was to the offensive line.

"But, I have to give our kids a lot of credit. They never lost heart. They stood up and played the best they could and, after all, that's all we can ask of them."

The loss dipped Robichaud's overall record to 3-6, their worst season in recent years.

The Bulldogs continued to have their problems holding on to ball. They committed eight big turnovers to add to their misery. (Robichaud also committed eight miscues the previous week in losing to arch-rival, Inkster, 24-18).

Muskegon jumped to a 14-0 first quarter lead and added to that margin by six in the next quarter to walk off the gridiron ahead, 20-0.

The Dearborn Heights gridders got back into the game briefly in the third quarter as they cut the Muskegon lead to 20-8 thanks to a 25-yard touchdown pass to Gary Johnson from quarterback Clint McDaniell. Gordon McDuffie accounted for the two-point conversion with his off-tackle slant.

But Muskegon came back with 11 unanswered points, building their advantage to an unsurmountable 31-8 before Robichaud scored its final touchdown of the 1986 campaign.

McDaniel combined with tight end Jeff Arthur on a 12-yard strike and McDuffy again came through with the two-pointer.

McDaniel also provided the Bulldogs will some adrenalin when he raced back the second half kickoff for an 80-yard touchdown only to watch the officials nullify the TD due to a clip.

(See BULLDOGS, page 3-C)

Tecumseh needs rally for Huron

If the 1986 football season is any indication of what is to be at New Boston Huron, then watch out for the Chiefs.

For the lack of a handful of points, Coach Tom Labeau's gridders could have finished 7-2 on the year. They dropped two games by less than a field goal and after letting Tecumseh escape on a 13-9 count last week, Huron showed it can be a power to contend with.

"Our problem," points out Labeau "is the lack of numbers. We have only 15 to 20 players and that's not enough. It takes more players to build a winner.

"But, when you consider that the program (football) was cut here in recent years, we have definitely made a lot of progress."

In what he called the hardest-hitting and best defensive effort on part of his team, Labeau watched Tecumseh slipped the noose that the Chiefs were making for their non-conference foes.

Huron drew first blood as Jon Tackett connected on a 35-yard field goal midway in the opening quarter to give the Chiefs a 3-0 lead. But a deflected John Umin pass that found its way into the hands of Tecumseh's Jeff McMunn gave the hosts the lead, 6-3. McMunn ran the misguided missile 35 yards into the Huron end zone.

Neither team managed to light up the scoreboard again until the final quarter. It was Huron that tilted the board first in that last quarter thanks to quarterback John Umin's 35-yard strike to Rich Gubbin. Tackett's extra point effort failed.

Eight minutes away from chalking up their fourth win of the campaign, the Chiefs couldn't sustain Tecumseh which came on target with a "bomb". Ken Anderson and Tim Bryan combined on a 52-yard touchdown pass to make it a 12-9 ball game, then Korean-born Duy Dung booted the extra point.

"We had a couple of other good drives going but failed to capitalize on them,"

Labeau said. "We were stopped on downs."

Umin accounted for 151 yards on nine direct hits in 21 passing attempts while fullback-linebacker Len Ziegler turned nine rushes into 54 yards. Dave Watson also stood out on defense from his end slot.

"This team created a lot of excitement around here this year and we are hoping that the momentum carries over a year from now," Labeau said. "But we have to get more kids out."

Something to cheer about

Despite the near freezing weather, Westland John Glenn fans were warmed by the fires of a 17-0 victory over natural rival Wayne Memorial Friday night. The victory, the eighth in nine starts this season, qualified the Rockets to play in the pre-regional playoffs scheduled to begin on Saturday. The Westlanders drew a 7-2 Ypsilanti team for its first test. That match-up will be played beginning at 1:30 p.m. on John Glenn's home field. • ANP photo by Guy Warren, ANP staff photographer.

Glenn qualifies for regionals

But Glenn's defense stiffened and forced Wayne to try a 48-yard field goal that went wide of its mark.

Wayne's defense, led by Warner, held and got the ball back. After two incomplete passes and a short Tatum run, Wayne dropped back to punt. This time, lightning did strike twice as the ball bounced low.

Warner fielded it and found Bishop open downfield for the first down as the Wayne fans began screaming. But the screaming died when the official signalled a penalty for "ineligible receiver downfield" and Wayne gave up the football at their own 26-yard line.

A penalty moved it to the 11 which set up a great opportunity for the Rockets. In two plays, Glenn had a score on a two-yard run by Paul Beasley.

Svaluto added the point-after and Glenn led, 17-0.

Wayne refused to quit as

Glenn has an excellent team . . . and we wish them all the luck in the playoffs.

— Coach Howton, Wayne

Tatum carried the ball 39 yards but Wayne's field goal attempt fell short as the first half ended.

Wayne forced Glenn to punt after their first second-half series and Tatum went to work, picking up a first down. He finished with a game high 97 yards.

But Mike Hammontree's sixth interception of the season in the end zone stopped one Zebra drive and a sack of Quartuccio stopped another.

When the game ended and the Rockets and their head coach, Gordon, accepted the trophy from the Wayne Jaycees, they accepted it the same way another Glenn team had accepted it in 1974 when the Rockets, behind a young captain, Johnson, had beaten Wayne for the first time.

Glenn now must prepare for a tough Ypsilanti club and Gordon views the pending confrontation as one of the toughest of the season.

"Ypsilanti is 7-2, having lost their first two games they came back and won seven straight," Gordon noted. "They have a big victory over Ann Arbor Pioneer, and also have won their conference title. This will be another excellent game between two fine teams."

In the meantime, in the Junior Fall Classic, the Wayne Junior Varsity brought the curtains down on an undefeated season with a hard-fought 8-0 victory over the Rockets. Glenn's Bryant Satterlee rushed for 220 yards against the Zebras.

Finale

noted. "It took something out of us and we were never the same."

Belleville opened the second and last half of the season with a textbook drive that took all of 13 plays and 80 yards which was culminated by Greg Hardmon's one-yard TD plunge. Hardmon and Virgil Chandler took turns grounding out most of the yardage in the drive.

Blandford responded after the kickoff with a counter-offense that put the Eagles within three of the Belleville goal line. Romulus called on Dennis Coleman who soared over the Tiger line of defense and landed in the end zone for the touchdown.

Romulus was back in the game, 18-12.

But the Tigers, aided by two 15-yard penalties, got their insurance touchdown when full-back Brent Price found his way over the goal line from the one. That score climaxed an eight-play drive.

The Eagles refused to quit even at this point and were again in striking zone when Budd intercepted a pass on the Belleville five-yard line, erasing the final threat.

Hardmon wound up with 90-yard rushing on 11 attempts and one TD while teammate Chandler added 62 yards on six tries. Ostrowski went to the air lines 12 times and found receivers eight times for 125 yards.

Three Belleville offensive players stood out - Sparrow, a right guard; Jeff Sykes, at right tackle and Armstrong,

A night to remember

With the help of his teammates, Wayne Memorial running back Darren Tatum is carried off the playing field. Tatum suffered a fourth quarter leg muscle injury but was able to return to action later. The senior back rushed for approximately 100 yards against natural rival, Westland John Glenn, however, the Zebras couldn't stop the playoff-bound Rockets who won their eighth game in nine starts, 17-0. Glenn qualified for the Class A state playoffs and will host Ypsilanti at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday to see which of the two will reach the semifinals. ANP photo by Guy Warren, staff photographer.

Surprise ending

Because of a scheduling mix-up, Inkster didn't meet Saginaw Buena Vista on the football field last Friday. Inkster Coach A. C. James said that Saginaw apparently had an earlier commitment, therefore, Saginaw school officials apologetically informed the Vikings they were locked into the game, leaving the local club without a rival and abruptly ending the grid season. One consolation - the Vikings will have greet the 1987 season with a one-game winning streak, having upset arch-rival, Dearborn Heights Robichaud the week before. ANP photo by Lothar E. Konietzko/ chief photographer.

Basketball registration dates set

It's that time of the year to put away the footballs and the helmets and get out the basketballs. The Westland Youth Athletic Association is seeking players for its cage program.

Beside basketballs and nets, you need players and the WYAA is conducting its annual cage registration on successive Saturdays beginning Nov. 8, Nov.15 and concluding on Nov. 22. Registration will be accepted from 10 a. m. until 2 p.m. at the Bailey Recreation Center in Westland.

The fee for basketball is $30 per child or $5 per family maximum. A copy of the birth certificate, as well as the signature of a parent or legal guardian, must be presented at the time of registration.

The league age is the child's age as of December 1, 1986.

There are three levels of competitions in the WYAA: Juniors (10, 11, or in the fourth grade); Intermediates (12-13), and Seniors, 14, 15, and 16 year olds.

A league for girls, ages 9 through 11, or in the fourth grade will also be offered this year.

Robichaud is host to girls cage district

Dearborn Heights Robichaud has been designated by the Michigan High School Athletic Association as the host school for District 41 of the Class B girls' basketball tournament.

The tournament will be conducted four days beginning Nov. 20 with the preliminary round. The opening day game will begin at 5:30 p.m. and the championship also will be decided at 5:30 p.m. on Wed.,

Nov. 26.

Among teams competing for the district championship and the right to play for the regional title are Dearborn High, Divine Child (Dearborn), St. Alphonsus (Dearborn), Inkster, Robichaud and Thurston (Redford Township).

The tournament pairings for the district will be announced at a later date.

Admission to all games is $2.

Bulldogs

"We had the momentum," said Yauck, "but all of a sudden you find yourself back on your own 10. It wasn't in the books."

McDaniel was on target with his passing as he completed eight of 18 passes for 117 yards and two

TDs.

Despite the outstanding effort by Don Mandell at linebacker, the Bulldogs sorely missed Tiji Armstrong, who doubles as a tight end and a linebacker. Armstrong was sidelined with an injury.

"When you look at the win-lost column, you can say we didn't do so well," Yauck said, "but I feel that there's more to a season that winning or losing. Our kids learned a lot from this season and we'll be back next year stronger than ever."

Petruski scores 2 as Garden City rips Franklin

These are not the best of times for Livonia Franklin football or Coach Armand Vigna.

With their offense sputtering through the 1986 campaign, the Pat defense also crumbled in its final outing, consequently, Franklin fell to Garden City 24-6.

Franklin couldn't stop Joe Petruski who racked up 234 yards en route to two touchdowns, including a 68-yard dash to the Patriots' end zone.

"I felt Petruski was the best back we had seen all year," said Vigna whose club finished with a disappointing 2-7 won-lost record. "No one has run like him against us."

Garden City put 14 points on their scoreboard in the first quarter thanks to Petruski, but the Patriots got one of those back in the second stanza when the Pats hit paydirt on Jeff Kroll's one-yard touchdown run. A reverse set up the score as Scott Canfield broke loose for a 24-yard gain, to the GC seven.

But Garden City came back with a touchdown and a field goal in the second half while its defense shut off their rivals to seal their final victory of the season.

Mike Linenberg's 28 yards on five carries was the best of the Franklin ballcarriers - that's how efficient the Garden City defense was on the Livonians, who couldn't get their offense untracked this season.

"It was a disappointing year for us," Vigna commented. We lacked foot speed and the consistency at quarterback and that was the name of the game."

Kotlarczyk leads Tigers to 3rd place at invitational

Belleville played the "perfect" swim host as the Tigers finished third an its second annual swimming & diving invitational.

The Belleville swim crown went to Milan which picked up 268 points while Plymouth Canton finished in the runner-up spot with 264. Belleville followed in third with 206, with Edsel Ford, fourth (173), Adrian, fifth (141) and Ypsilanti, sixth (40).

"I felt our girls swam well," said Belleville Coach Sam Vickey, "but Milan and Canton have some excellent talent. Kotlarczyk got the job done as usual, while Merritt, Giza, Duda and Montie also contributed."

The Belleville coach pointed out that the invitational "was an excellent tune up for the Wolverine 'A' Conference championships which will be staged later this month. The Tigers are the defending champs.

After losing the 200-yard medley relay to Canton, Belleville came back to place first and second in the 200-yard freestyle as Karen Kotlarczyk led teammate Melanie Merritt to the wire. Kotlarczyk was clocked in the winning time of 2:06.22.

Canton's Cassie Cummins, a double gold medalist, picked up her first win in the 200-yard individual medley where she turned in the winning time of 2:18.97. Tigers Wendy Giza and Jennifer Powell were fourth and eighth, respectively, while Tracy McCormick and Bambi Gross were 10th and 12th.

Cummins also captured the 500 freestyle, churning a 5:27.05 en route to her victory. Merritt gave Belleville a fourth in the event while Giza and Christy Sikes were eighth and 12th respectively.

Milan was represented in the winner's circle by Michelle Swix who posted a 24.57 in striking gold in the 50-yard freestyle. Kotlarczyk had the third best time (26.75) while teammates Gina Montie and Traci Gentle were ninth and tenth, respectively.

Stephanie Ray dominated the diving boards. The Milan gold medalist amassed 432.15 points, finishing ahead of an impressive field that included Belleville's Holly Druker who settled for fifth place (316.30). Belleville also had the ninth and tenth best divers with Cheryl Bird and Linda Parent.

Canton came back to win the 100-yard butterfly thanks to Julie Cox's performance. She was clocked in 1:01.63. Traci Gentle placed 10th (1:12.22) and Tracy McCormick finished 11th.

It was Michelle Swix again in the 100-yard freestyle. Her 54.05 was the best time for the event. Belleville got a sixth, 11th and 12th from Montie (1:02.43), Natalie Schroeder (1:05.01) and Marcy Korgal (1:05.81), respectively.

Adrian's only win came off of Kris Lahm's performance in the 100-yard breaststroke where she had a winning time of 1:09.13. Bambi Gross was sixth (1:12.46), Jennifer Owsley, seventh (1:13.74), Christy Sikes, ninth (1:14.25), and Marcy Korgal, 12th (1:18.54).

Cox put the 100-yard breaststroke event into the Canton win column as she led the field to the wall. She had a 1:22.39. Belleville swimmers were sixth, seventh, and ninth with Duda (1:22.39), Schroeder (1:22.74) and Howard (1:23.63).

Edsel's T-Birds beat out Belleville's foursome of Kotlarczyk, Merritt, Giza and Montie for the gold in the 400-yard freestyle relay. Edsel's winning time was 4:00.16, while the Tigers' time was posted at 4:01.02.

Bah, humbug?

Woman Santa is denied mall job

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Mary Martini of Westland never wanted to ruffle any feathers or tamper with anything as sacred in American culture as hot dogs, apple pie or Santa Claus. However, by the same token, she doesn't intend to let the simple fact of her female gender interfere with her right to make a few children laugh and a handful of grown-ups smile this holiday season.

Martini, 32, didn't give a second thought to her intent to apply for the Santa Claus position at Westland Mall earlier this month. After reading in the paper that applications were being accepted for the king of Christmas joy and jolliness, Martini set out for the local mall to submit her request and show off her photographic portfolio of on-the-job experience as a Santa.

"I had worked as the Santa Claus as a volunteer last year. I thought it was so much fun that I would do it professionally," Martini said. "I filled out my application, walked up to the three ladies there and said, 'You are going to think I am crazy because I don't want to apply for the pixie's job. I want to be the Santa Claus.'"

Somewhat amused, but equally baffled by Martini's strange request, the woman taking the applications told the Westland mother and homemaker that Santa Claus jobs were traditionally men's jobs, and women weren't even considered for the spots except in extreme emergencies. Well prepared for such an answer, Martini pulled out her photo album which gave photographic testimonials of her ability to quiet the cries of toddlers as they sit upon Santa's lap and bring about a grin, a smile or giggle or two.

"I had some pictures of work I had done last year at my husband's Christmas party. They said they would consider me if I would accept the pixie's job. I said 'I wasn't interested,'" Martini explained. "I would have even done the Santa's job for nothing—I just want to make the little kids happy."

"Just because Santa Claus has never been a female doesn't make it right. I can make people happy too."

Not content with her failed efforts to convince the application takers of her Santa Claus abilities, Martini made several calls to various mall offices. All failed to bring an answer. Her husband had suggested that court action might put an end to the alleged job discrimination, however, Martini isn't quite ready to take Santa Claus to court.

"You're talking about Santa Claus here. I don't want to put a strain on Santa Claus' name," said Martini. "He's next to God in my opinion."

"When I was a child, we were very poor. I never got to get my picture taken with Santa Claus. And then last year when I saw what those guys were wearing as Santa suits, I decided that some of these guys did not know how it was done. I wanted to show them."

Last year, Martini was offered a fill-in position as Santa for her husband's Christmas party at Hydromatics. Initially, the Westland resident was told she could work only the 15-minutes break periods of the male Santa figure. But, after onlookers saw many children warm right up to the female version of Jolly Old St. Nick, company head hanchos allowed her to complete a six and one-half hour stint on the Santa Claus chair.

"None of the kids knew I was female. After the 'ho, ho, ho' I went back to my female voice. The kids warmed right up to me," Martini explained.

Martini still doesn't have a guaranteed job a in Santa's seat this year, but she hasn't given up hope just yet. The search for such a position occupies much of her weekly agenda, searching through newspaper want ads and keeping her eye out for any "Santas wanted" posters.

But even if that job never comes, Martini won't give in. She already has volunteered her Santa services to her husband's company Christmas party this year, and she has her eyes set on a new red and white fur suit that should make her spirited disguise even merrier.

And, after the roar of the Christmas holiday fades and the dust from the hoopla settles, Martini is convinced that the "ho, ho, ho" of Christmas love, and the joy of Christmas giving will always remain in her heart.

"I never thought there would be any problem with me being Santa Claus," Martini exclaimed. "After all, the whole idea behind Christmas is to make other people happy."

Mary Martini poses in her Santa Claus suit which she says makes her just as good, if not better, than the traditional male Santa figure.

Wayne home fire set by 3 youths

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

More than $16,000 in property damages were the aftermath of a house fire Monday afternoon on Glover Street in Wayne.

Wayne fire department officials reported that the blaze was apparently set by three 10-year-old fifth-graders who were home on their lunch break. A fire department investigation revealed that the fire started in an upstairs bedroom of the one and one-half story bungalow. Matches and fireworks are believed to have provided to fuel for the fire.

According to the department, the three boys evacuated the home after noticing the fire and ran down the street requesting help from a elementary school safety guard. The guard, police said, called the fire department at about 12:28 p.m. and reported the incident.

An older male was left sleeping in a downstairs portion of the house but was later awakened by one of the three boys who apparently set the blaze.

Fire fighters used three trucks and battled the fire for about two hours before getting it under control. No injuries were reported in the incident.

The home, which was valued at $40,000, was burned extensively in the room that the fire was started, fire officials said. In addition, most of the contents and building were damaged by smoke and heat.

Free dumping is offered

Free disposal of household debris is being offered by the Woodland Meadows Landfill, Van Born Road at Hannan, Canton Township, this Saturday.

Ready, willing and 'able'
Local retailer has rentals from A to Z

By CURT JORDET
ANP Staff Writer

The year was 1960, and for local entrepreneur Bill Titus, it was a lot like reading A Tale of Two Cities.

It was the best of times. It was also the worst of times. Or perhaps, in Titus' case, it was the other way around.

Titus, a plumber by trade, had spent most of the 1950s making a comfortable living with his set of wrenches and pipes and was looking forward to another decade of more of the same. The problem was, however, that 1960 rolled around and the nation was soon placed in the midst of an economic recession, costing Titus his livelihood and forcing the venerable businessman to shift his focus elsewhere.

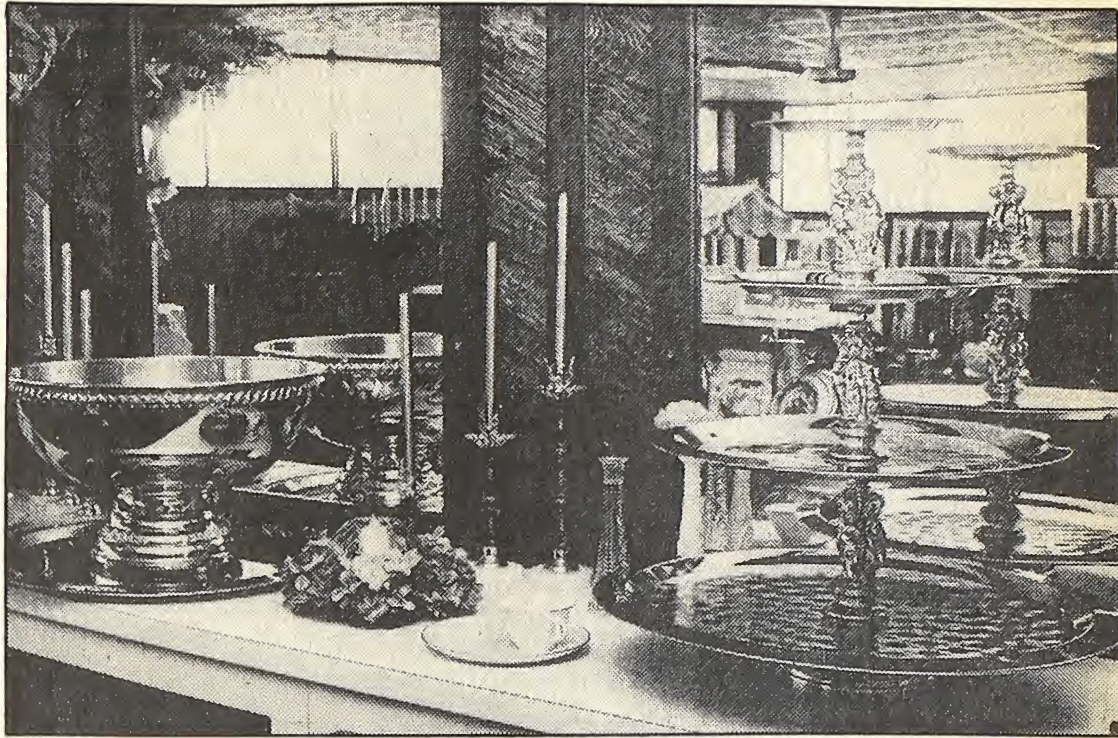

It may have seemed like the worst of times for many, but for Titus it was just the beginning of what has turned out to be a successful career in the rental business. By opening the Able Rental Service chain, Titus was able to secure a decent income while providing a valuable service to people in western Wayne County.

"It was really a fairy story," he explained, reflecting back on the decision to change careers. "Up to that time I had enjoyed a relatively successful career as a plumber."

"But 1960 was a recession year, and the building trades were tied directly to the economy," he continued. "So one day I just happened to be reading Changing Times magazine, and I noticed that there was some information on how you could obtain a United Rent-All franchise."

"I was looking for a career opportunity. But I couldn't see what advantage you could have from a United Rent-All franchise that I couldn't have on my own, so I decided to start my own company."

The rest is history. From modest beginnings as a co-owner of the Suburban Rent-It Co. in Livonia (with neighbor John Giacoboczi), Titus built an empire of five separate locations, including one on Michigan Avenue in Wayne, just west of

A few of the items available for rental. ANP photo by Guy Warren/staff photographer

Merriman. The location in Brighton rents out a virtual mountain of party supplies on a per-occasion basis, while others in Livonia and Plymouth stock a well-supplied inventory of tools and machinery for the handyman. Larger locations in Wayne and Novi supply both.

So successful has been the business, in fact, that Titus now employs the services of his two sons, Jeffery and Christopher, to help manage the branches. The success, however, did not come easy.

"We have worked hard at it," Titus offered. "We have tried to supply everything that anyone could possibly want, and we have branched out into several areas because of the laws of supply and demand, especially in the last two years."

From single pieces of silverware, which rent for 15 cents, up to front-end loaders and canopy tents, which can cost up to $250 per day, Able Rental supplies it all. Party planners can even find the likes of gazebos, flower carts and dance floors at the party rental locations.

"We like to think that we've got it all right here," boasted Titus. "Persons can rent as little as they want or as much as they want - we don't care."

Those who are planning a celebration may want to take Titus up on the generous offer, since all party supplies are delivered directly to the home well in advance of the big occasion and come sanitized and table-ready.

"We try to make a determined effort to please the customer," explained Titus of his marketing strategy. "Whether that means having exactly what the consumer wants, or whether it means providing the necessary service, we try to meet the need."

His strategy seems to be working very well indeed.

wall street — the week ahead

It would appear that the Federal Reserve Board is maintaining a low profile in domestic financial markets. The financial markets seem to have sufficient liquidity, and the bank system appears to have adequate reserves to meet current economic activity. The Federal Reserve Board may be using this time to exert some influence on world bank systems and economics.

Paul Volcker has a very delicate job - world economics and our own domestic requirements need a very sensitive balance. For this week, market influences will move bond prices higher, and interest-sensitive issues yields lower. Gold and silver prices will continue to drift in narrow ranges. The short-term traders will open the session holding their present positions. By mid-session, lack of strong buying enthusiasm will cause them to move to the sell side. Intermediate-term traders are the strength of the market.

They will hold their present positions and be willing buyers in any moderate market decline. Long-term traders will be liquidating positions as we move through this session.

For this week, I see the market opening flat to higher on moderate to low activity. It appears that secondary issues have tried to support advancing leadership but are failing to keep pace. For this session, the secondary issues seem to be losing strength and may stumble by the end of the week.

TRENDS: The Fed's influence on the world scene is now directed, I believe, toward the consequences of the removal of Sheik Yamani, former oil minister of Saudia Arabia and de facto leader of OPEC. While most people think this will move oil prices higher, I believe oil will actually drop, possibly causing serious dislocations in world economics... and this is what has the attention of the Fed and Volcker.

NOTE: Exxon's profits are up, Texaco's profits are down. Britain deregulated its financial markets, the Industrial Bank of Japan becomes a primary dealer of the Fed, Japan cut its discount rate, U.S. trade deficit narrowed for the second month in a row.

Wood stove safety just a sweep away

Autumn weather presents a warning sign that winter is fast approaching, but it can also serve as a useful warning signal that could save your home from needless expense and possible catastrophe.

That's because the cool, crisp weather should serve as a sign to get your furnace and fireplace in order before the snow flies. After all, nobody relishes the thought of having a heating system go on the blink when the temperature dips to zero outside.

According to U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, fall represents one of the most important times for consumers in terms of getting their heating systems checked. The relatively inexpensive process is readily available to most homeowners, but is often rejected in order to save a few dollars.

Furnace problems often manifest themselves during the summer, however, when the idle heaters have a tendency to build up deposits. If not cleaned by a qualified heating contractor, a clogged furnace, chimney or flue pipe may result in dangerous carbon monoxide fumes being discharged into the home.

for the consumer

Persons who have been exposed to carbon monoxide often show flu-like symptoms, including dizziness, fatigue, headaches, irregular breathing and nausea. Exposure to high doses of carbon monoxide may even prove fatal.

Persons who have had their home heating systems converted from oil to gas should be especially careful about using an unchecked furnace, since collected soot in the system could block the exhaust, causing a much quicker carbon monoxide buildup.

In addition, those with wood-burning stoves or fireplaces should have their chimneys cleaned on a regular basis to avoid the hazard of causing a fire in the shaft. According to local chimney sweep Art Dockery, any number of things could cause blockages in the chimney, including the loosening of mortar in chimney walls, the accumulation of bird nests and the buildup of carbon deposits.

"If there is a blockage in the shaft and a fire is started underneath, the blockage could easily catch fire itself, with temperatures reaching upwards of 3,000 degrees," said Dockery. "It's a fire that could endanger the whole house."

Most chimney sweeps today use advance cleaning techniques which employ the use of a large vacuum cleaner to remove sooty deposits with little or no mess. Qualified sweeps can often complete the task without climbing onto the roof of the house, and charge from $50-$60, depending on the type of house.

Regular fireplaces should be checked every five years, Dockery warned.

Because of a tar-like buildup in the chimneys of wood-burning stoves or fireplace inserts, however, cleaning of these items usually involves more time and risk. Dockery recommended that persons who use either should have their systems checked and cleaned every year. The cost for cleaning each usually runs from $85-$90, according to Dockery.

Gourmet cooks Polish treats

By BOB DENYS ANP Staff Writer

Pat Richardson of Westland wins prizes for her fancy hors d'oeuvres, but she satisfies the indiscriminate palate of her family with basic All-American cooking. Last year, the Westland Soroptomist Club awarded her second place for her entry of a crab filled hors d'oeuvre. She is most proud of her polish heritage. Her parents still live in the same house where she was born and raised near southwest Detroit. Pat was the oldest of four children. "When you're the oldest, somehow you become the head cook and bottlewasher for the whole group. After I married, most family gatherings were at our house and naturally I cooked. Polish families seem to have dozens of cousins, and someone is always visiting," she explained. She and her husband Charles have two children of their own. They lived in Inks-ter for 28 years and for the past three years in Westland. "My kids' friends were always over," she explained. "We made everything Polish," she said. "Sauerkraut and noodles was the family favorite. They liked kluski which is fried cabbage and noodles with potato dough. Pierogies are my favorite, especially prunes," she said with a laugh. Other pierogie mixtures include cheese and potatoes. There are two polish foods Pat does not make because she said, "My parents, who have been married over 50 years, still make all the kielbasa and the duck blood soup. It's just the best, and nothing I would make could compare."

Pat presently works as a real estate agent for Earl Kiem. Before that, for 13 years, she served as secretary for Wayne Mayor Pat Norton.

Her natural, instinctive ability to cook ethnic foods extends across several cultures. "With everybody on a diet, I cook a lot differently. Polish food is definitely not diet food. We cook with a wok, crockpot and a microwave. Nowadays when you work, you have to manage your time efficiently. I hardly cook during the week. I cook up a storm on the weekends and store it for the upcoming week. You have to do that way," she said.

The following are some old and new favorite family recipes.

CRABMEAT ROLLUPS

- 6 to 8 ounce crab strips or frozen crabmeat, thawed
- 2 tbls. butter
- 1/4 cup sliced green onion
- 1 cup chopped mushrooms
- 1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese
- 1 three-ounce package cream cheese, softened
- 1/3 cup mayonnaise
- 2 tbls. chopped parsley
- 1/4 pound phyllo pastry sheets
- 1/2 cup melted butter

Drain and cut up crab. Melt butter and add onions. Saute one minute and add mushrooms and saute one minute longer. Combine crab, cheeses, mayo and parsley. Spread two pastry sheets at a time, together. (Cover the rest with damp towel.) Cut each group of two sheets into strips about 2 inches by 10 inches. Brush each strip with melted butter. Spoon a scant tablespoon filling at the end of each row and fold over filling into triangles as if you were folding a flag. Seal the end with butter and place seam down on a lightly-greased baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes until crisp and golden. Serve warm. Makes about 40.

FRIED CABBAGE AND NOODLES

- 2 tsp. butter
- 1/2 medium head of cabbage
- 1/4 tbls. heavy black pepper
- 1/8 tbls. celery seed
- 1/2 onion
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1 cup cooked noodles or kluskio (potato dumplings)

Slice cabbage and onions (optional) medium. Fry over low heat, being careful not to burn. Add spices. When soft but not mushy, add noodles and heat thoroughly. Just before serving, add 1/2 cup sour cream.

Busy as bees

Bakers using honey to sweeten their palates

I love it slathered over waffles, dripping down the sides of a stack of flapjacks. I know people who stir it into their tea. What would a good barbecue sauce be without it?

Honey.

Pure and simple.

For centuries, honey was the major sweetener in the world. In past civilizations, honey was offered to the gods, used to pay taxes and used in special dishes, many of which are still enjoyed today.

Even though they no longer describe it as "dew distilled from the stars and the rainbow," modern cooks still have high regard for honey because of the rich, delicate flavor it adds to cooking and baking.

Honey is a natural unrefined sweetener produced by bees from the nectar of flowers. Two simple sugars, levulose and dextrose, form 80 percent of the honey composition. Honey contains about 18 percent water, and the remainder is made up of small quantities of two other sugars, maltose and sucrose along with vitamins, minerals, organic acids, ash and enzymes.

Two basic simple sugars in honey are quickly absorbed by the body, making honey an instant source of energy. Cane and beet sugars must be broken down into simple sugars before they can be assimilated.

Liquid honey is extracted from the comb and strained to promote clarity. Creamed honey is prepared by seeding liquid honey with finely granulated honey and storing it under controlled situations. Comb honey is natural honey sealed in wax made by bees in the hive. It is usually sold in frames or cut into sections. Chunk honey is a mixture of liquid honey, and combed honey so sold in a container.

The floral source of the nectar determines the flavor and color of honey. Several grades of honey are sold commercially. They include:

chef larry janes

- Virgin or superfine honey, extracted from combs by gentle heating;
- Common or yellow honey, extracted under greater heat or brown honey, extracted by pressure under heat.

Usually, you will see honey sold as white, golden, amber or dark.

The five most common flavors are strawberry, wildflower, sunflower, blueberry and buckwheat. The best honey money can buy is honey made from the nectar of labiate, otherwise known as thyme. Another highly-touted honey is that derived from rosemary. Usually, one will see the name hymethus (Greek thyme) or norbonne (French rosemary) at the head of the chart for the most costly honey in the world.

Everyday, users like you and me are satisfied with clover honey, but if you get the opportunity to sample other varieties, you will find taste sensations as varied as wine. Beware, however, that certain plants can impart a flavor to honey which is unpleasant. Honey gathered from pine or around a pine forest can have a resinous taste. If you have purchased honey and allowed it to store for such a length of time that crystallization has formed on top, do not despair! Simply place the jar with the lid loosened in a pot of slowly simmering water. The heat will dissolve the crystallized particles back into clear, pourable honey. This also works great in the microwave on medium power with the lid removed. Honey is great used in baked goods, sauces and toppings. Try the recipes listed below and let me know if you think you have something better. Send suggestions to me in care of this newspaper. Bon Appetit!

You don't have to be in business to lease a new Dodge Dakota.

Business firms frequently lease their vehicles rather than purchase them, because it's more cash efficient. By leasing, companies tie up less cash and keep it working in their business. Today, you can enjoy the same advantages. Leasing not only lets you retain your cash but allows you to drive the truck you want, usually without a big down payment, and with smaller monthly payments.

The Chrysler Gold Key Leasing Plan guarantees the future value of your vehicle today. Learn about all the advantages of truck leasing with our Gold Key Plan. Call one of our leasing professionals today!
